Like an Ugly Duckling

WHAT will ever become of you, Hans? asked his mother with a sigh. You teacher told me in the market today that you will fail again this year. Why do you dream and waste your...

Hans looked up at his mother. He was a homely, odd-looking lad, and he knew people thought his queer. Instead of playing games with the other boys, Hans used to sit alone and read books...

IN THE TOWN of Odense, in Denmark, where Hans Christian Andersen lived, everyone felt a little sorry for the widow of the shoemaker. She was poor, and Hans was not to be trusted after her husband died, while her strange habits...

WHEN YOUNG Hans began his mother to allow him to go to Copenhagen to be an actor or an opera singer, his mother tried to laugh him out of the door. She wanted Hans to be a shoemaker like her father had been...

JUST AS IT seemed that the young man would starve, a chance came to help him. He had heard that the king was looking for a boy to be his fairy godson...

THE STORIES of Hans Christian Andersen became widely known. They were translated into many languages. Everyone loved the stories, and forgot the...

Miss stands on his memory. It stands in the public gardens of Copenhagen, at the end of a long avenue of trees. Children play around it, and sometimes pause to look up into the kind face of their beloved storyteller.

The life story of Hans Christian Andersen was like the story of the ugly duckling who changed into a swan, for Hans changed from a queer little boy to a great and much loved writer of stories for children.

St. Charles Borromeo always read the Bible on knotted knees.

FAIRY CROSSWORD PUZZLE

St. Leo the Great

A very wise and holy man was Pope from 440 to 461. He was Leo the Great. Many of the sermons he preached have come down to us, and in them we see that he was very wise and very humble.

When the barbarian Huns overran the Empire around the year 480, they robbed and burned the city of Rome. Finally they came into Italy, hoping to find Rome a long sleep which would mean great suffering for the people. Pope Leo went out to meet the barbarian king, Attila. The leader of the Huns was deeply impressed by the Pope, and that day there was a ruler with greater authority than his own.

WORD LADDER

You might be able to see the KING of the fairies, if you know the correct magic WORD. Climb the ladder from KING to WORD, change only one letter at each step, and make a real word each time.
