

Courier Journal

Father Gillis Says:

Nation's Honor Needs Saving

The Yardstick By Rev. Geo. A. Higgins

Were the Strikes A Blessing?

Recently at the close of a lecture on Spain and France I declared with the warmth of complete conviction that our State Department must not jeopardize our national honor...

As for Mihalovitch; no one except a fanatically self-blinded Soviet sympathizer believes for a moment that the Czechoslovak leader will get a fair trial...

The recent railroad strike will have been a blessing if it forces us to go down to bed-rock for the solution of labor-management problems.

that economic power always crystallized around capitalist wealth and around labor organizations, but that no open, clearly circumscribed, and public responsibility to the community or the nation is bound to that power...

I had to admit that the questioner's point was well taken, but I expressed the hope that we may see the desperate hope that we have not gone so far along the line of national degradation that we cannot turn right about and make our way back to hope.

As it goes everywhere, in Europe, Asia and Africa, when we took upon ourselves the job of fighting and winning the war, that was the least of the obligations we assumed.

In the first place, it would seem rather obvious that the Committee will not be going down to bed-rock if it confines its efforts exclusively to a search for better labor legislation.

Legislation can assist and must assist in the process. But legislation in the framework of our present economic set-up, is patch-work at best.

But the fact that we don't want to fight does not mean that we must be Stalin's pawns in injustice. We have, as a matter of fact, descended too far in our ignominious attitude to Poland.

As it goes everywhere, in Europe, Asia and Africa, when we took upon ourselves the job of fighting and winning the war, that was the least of the obligations we assumed.

Perhaps the following quotation will suggest the need for a totally new kind of approach to the problem. The quotation is taken from a recent book by Dr. Heinrich Rommen, "The State in Catholic Thought."

Pope XI's vocational group system is not a panacea. It will not automatically eliminate all points of difference between organized labor and organized management.

The Red Belt

By TOM ROGERS

Washington—The idea of revolution in each country having been abandoned by the Communist Party which enslaved Russia, what is their new tack?

STRANGE BUT TRUE

Little-Known Facts for Catholics

By M. J. MURRAY

Advertisement for 'AMERICA'S FIRST PUBLIC SHRINE TO OUR LADY OF PERPETUAL HELP' featuring a list of ailments and a testimonial.

Sterilizing Mentally Ill

By I. J. GILBERT

Washington—Sterilization of mentally ill persons is recommended in a report submitted by a group that made a health and hospital survey in the National Capital.

Persecution of Church

By Rev. Richard Gander

Catholics are in duty bound to join free labor unions, according to Rev. George F. Kettell, S.T.D., pastor of Old St. Mary's.

Snake Well Before Using

By Rev. Richard Gander

That is the question that the Bible says, "Whomsoever believeth in His name shall not perish, but have eternal life."

That the Holy Know

By Rev. Richard Gander

But St. James—wasn't his declared in an epistle of straw? Yes, by Martin Luther, Sr.

Practical Minded!

By Rev. Richard Gander

Did you hear about the youngster who was found drinking the holy water? He was told that that was not the way holy water should be used.

Hope for World

By Rev. Richard Gander

Lincoln, Neb. (INS)—Dr. Reuben G. Gustavson, atomic research scientist, "A new world lies ahead of us—if we can resist the temptation to blow ourselves up."

That the Holy Know

By Rev. Richard Gander

But St. James—wasn't his declared in an epistle of straw? Yes, by Martin Luther, Sr.

Practical Minded!

By Rev. Richard Gander

Did you hear about the youngster who was found drinking the holy water? He was told that that was not the way holy water should be used.

Hope for World

By Rev. Richard Gander

Lincoln, Neb. (INS)—Dr. Reuben G. Gustavson, atomic research scientist, "A new world lies ahead of us—if we can resist the temptation to blow ourselves up."

That the Holy Know

By Rev. Richard Gander

But St. James—wasn't his declared in an epistle of straw? Yes, by Martin Luther, Sr.

Practical Minded!

By Rev. Richard Gander

Did you hear about the youngster who was found drinking the holy water? He was told that that was not the way holy water should be used.

Hope for World

By Rev. Richard Gander

Lincoln, Neb. (INS)—Dr. Reuben G. Gustavson, atomic research scientist, "A new world lies ahead of us—if we can resist the temptation to blow ourselves up."

That the Holy Know

By Rev. Richard Gander

But St. James—wasn't his declared in an epistle of straw? Yes, by Martin Luther, Sr.

Vertical text on the right edge of the page, including 'Diploma 870 boys a ment-exer lic High S Rochester...' and 'Wearis adorne seven...'.