Information Desk Annulment and Nullity

Q: I recently met a "delegate to the diocesan convocation" of the Episcopal Church. This person said that the following statement was made at the Convocation: "A marriage in the Roman Catholic Church can be annulled for one hundred and eighty-seven reasons..."

A: People generally confuse two very different things: an annulment and a decree of nullity. An annulment is the declaration of a marriage as null and void from the beginning...

Q: What do you think about the morality of the recent railroad strike?

A: Here at the Information Desk we do not examine other people's consciences. We may however give the principles laid down by Catholic moralists according to which the morality of any strike must be judged...

Q: I would like to know if a man who has been baptized in the Roman Catholic Church can be rebaptized in the Protestant Church.

A: A man who has been baptized in the Roman Catholic Church cannot be rebaptized in the Protestant Church. Baptism is a sacrament that is indelible...

Q: I would like to know if a man who has been baptized in the Protestant Church can be rebaptized in the Roman Catholic Church.

A: A man who has been baptized in the Protestant Church can be rebaptized in the Roman Catholic Church. The Church recognizes the validity of baptism administered in other Christian churches...

Not Democracy

"But what of the liberty under which Catholics are not allowed to have their own schools — where only the State schools are tolerated under which system the ruling parties, and sometimes minority parties, can enforce their view of the world on the children of the majority? This is not democracy; it is not even liberty..."
