Masonic Emblem on Victory Stamp Stirs the British

London — (NC) — The appearance of the three-penny Victory postage stamp in this country has given rise to adverse comment in the English press because it features an emblem identified with masonry. In one corner is a portrait of King George VI facing a dove of peace and the masonic emblem — the set square, compass and trowel. It was suggested that members of the armed forces would have been more appreciative symbols for a commemorative victory stamp. (NC Photo).
