Music for the ceremonies was provided by a choir of Friars conducted by the Rev. Gregory Smith, O. Carm.

The chapel, small though it is, is completely equipped. A beautiful altar has been erected in the north end of the room, formerly used as a music room, and the altar is situated in a high domed archway.

Long, highbacked seats have been installed down the west and east sides of the chapel room and an organ has been also installed. The full length windows open to the east of the chapel with a view over the wide sweeping lawns.

Text of Sermon At Dedication

erated the first Carmelite Church in England. "God fulfills Himself in many ways." On this seventh day of September, in the year of our Lord, 1946, another Lord Bishop of Rochester, in the new world, blesses and dedicates a new Whitefriars and a new chapel to the glory of God and in honor of our Lady.

Here, day by day, the Friars will assemble to unite in the offering of the Holy Sacrifice, to chant the praises of God, to honor their great Lady, to pray for the living and the dead, and to remember before the altar their generous benefactors. Here, young men will be trained in the way of God, according to the Carmelite Rule and according to the Carmelite traditions. The work that you have helped us to begin here today will result, through the years, in God's mercy, to bless many souls. That it may redound, therefore, to your everlasting reward, is our sincere prayer for you this morning.

From another Whitefriars in another day came the Venerable Thomas Waldensis, proclaimed by Father De la Taille, S.J., as "the only great theologian of the fifteenth century," and again as "the practically only Eucharistian defender, who championed the causes of Catholic truth against Wyclif and the Lollards."

May his memory and that of many other Whitefriars inspire us and the youthful souls amongst us to emulate the holiness and the learning of the sainted men and women of our Order, that, as a result, we may give to you, in God's good time, the fruits which you rightly expect from us.

May the great Patroness of our Order, Our Lady of Mount Carmel, bless his Excellency, our Bishop, and all the kind friends who have helped us unto this happy moment, in which we go to the Altar of God to give thanks for His mercies to us on this the day of our dedication.
