"THE 100 GREAT IDEAS"

Through the popularity of his HOW TO READ A BOOK and through his teaching at St. John's College and at the University of Chicago, Dr. Adler's name is associated with the "hundred great books" as the essential core of liberal education. The Encyclopedia Britannica is now engaged in the project of publishing a complete set of the Great Books, and Dr. Adler has been working on the preparation of a monumental index to this set as a whole. In the course of doing this, he has listed the 105 great ideas which constitute the subject-matter or topics of the great books. In their interrelationships, these ideas form the fabric of our whole tradition of learning and wisdom.
