Selma Mission Needs Told by Geneva Nun

Seneca Falls—More than a hundred members of St. Patrick's Guild and Altar Society, last Monday evening, heard Sister Francis Marie, of St. Francis de Sales parish, Geneva, tell of the Selma, Alabama, Mission. A movie was shown covering various religious activities at the Mission.

Sister Francis Marie described in detail the work that the Sisters of St. Joseph have accomplished at Selma, against almost unsurmountable odds.

When the Sisters first began their work there, there was little to do with and it was necessary for them to use the crudest methods of labor. Gradually, through their own perseverence, and by winning the Negroes over with their kindness and charity, they soon had a thriving little parish, Sister reported.

Today the Mission boasts of a Church, a school which has been built up a grade a year and now consists of six grades, a modern, sanitary hospital, The Inn, for the care of indigent old folks and a clothing room, a sort of a perpetual rummage sale where the inhabitants are able to purchase the necessities of life, and sometimes a few luxuries, at a low price.

Sister cited an instance when they outfitted a bride, even to the wedding ring, and another time when they were asked by the priests who oversee the Mission, to line a tiny casket to receive the remains of a child who had died.

Furnish Christmas Tree

Their duties are multitudinous and no task is too great for them to at least make an attempt to conquer. At Christmas time, the Sisters are called upon to supply a Christmas tree for the Hospital, one for the aged at The Inn, one for the school for the children and one for the children who come in for instruction. Naturally, it requires a great deal of ingenuity to satisfy each recipient. In the past the Sisters have received assistance from the pupils of Nazareth Academy, Rochester, and those articles, augmented by little choice bits which turned up in the donations received throughout the year from various parts of the country, made up Santa Claus's pack.

This year, St. Patrick's Guild and Altar Society has decided to do a bit of charity at the same time they have their own Christmas party. In addition to the small gift which each member is expected to bring for exchange, there will be a gift shower for Selma. Any article which will please a child at Christmas time will be acceptable. Many women who are talented with a needle or in some other way, could turn out a little gift for the same amount of money she would pay for something less useful at the five and ten or some similar store.

Sister Francis Marie said that it is necessary for the Mission to carry on their work particularly the Christmas entertainment and tree, because, if the Negroes do not receive a gift at the Mission, there are other Churches with welcome arms extended and very often, they are lost to the faith just because of that.

its graduates since the first award in 1913.

To maintain a bond between its graduates and the Alma Mater, the Nazareth Academy Alumnae Association was founded in 1895. Members will take an active part in the Diamond Jubilee program. The Association became affiliated with the International Federation of Catholic Alumnae in 1921.

Through the course of its history, Nazareth Academy has grown and developed. Today it affords its students a rounded educational curriculum and an opportunity to utilize their abilities and interests in extra-curricular activities. These include schools clubs, a student council, religious organizations, dramatic presentations, a Perosian choir and orchestra, a newspaper, citizenship projects and an athletic association.

The faculty points out that above all, Nazareth Academy students receive today as in the first Nazareth, a Catholic training in Christian principles equipping them to choose and fulfill maturely their state in life. Graduates are equipped for life in the home, in the hospital, in the work of social service, in the classroom, in the business world, in the cloister and to exert a spiritual and moral influence as responsible members of the community in which they live.
