

Germans Seek Early Return Of Prisoners

Frankfurt — (APC) — The absence of millions of Germans, still held in foreign countries as prisoners of war, was felt particularly keenly at Christmas time and prayers for their safe and early return were offered in all churches.

Shortly before Christmas the German hierarchy addressed a message to all Germans still in captivity, urging them to receive Holy Communion at Christmas.

Archbishop Conrad Groeber of Freiburg in Breisgau in a Christmas message made the following appeal to the world: "At the Feast of the Nativity of Our Lord and Redeemer, we Christians in Germany ask all Christians in the world to pray for the early return of our prisoners of war."

War Prisoners Get Chaplains

Cologne — About 10 German prisoners have volunteered to serve as chaplains among prisoners of war in France, the majority of whom are Catholics.

These prisoners feel that by the use of their own religious knowledge and their own spiritual strength they can help their fellow prisoners.

The prisoners were taken to Paris where they were received by the American military authorities and then assigned to different camps.

The number of German prisoners in France is estimated at close to 500,000.

London and all people: Help us put an end to the sufferings of our prisoners of war and their families. Give back to the children their fathers, to the wives their husbands, to the mothers their sons.

The German Catholic press quotes approvingly editorials of both Catholic and Protestant publications in France, which ask their own government that the status of the prisoners of war in that country be changed so that they would be taking part in France's reconstruction under true labor contracts, with home leave, or with the opportunity to let their families join them.

The whole problem of the continued detention of German prisoners in the victor countries has now become a major international issue. Mrs. Secretary of State Acheson's appeal to France and his promise that prisoners made by the United States Army would be released shortly, discussion is carried on more intensely than ever before in all the relations between Germany, France and the United States.

Pulpit Supplemented by Growing Number of Parish Publications

Parish publications, many with circulations of over 1000, are keeping Rochester diocesan Catholics well-informed on the national and local news.

Parish newspapers, bulletins and announcements, a large number of which are published regularly each week, have become a common service throughout the diocese in the last few years.

Edited for the most part by the busy pastor and his assistants, the parochial organs are thought to be filling a long felt need within the parishes.

Largest in size of these publications is "The Parish Weekly," compiled each week by priests of the Rochester diocese.

With a weekly circulation of nearly 2000 copies, "The Parish Weekly" is growing rapidly and according to a recent announcement will be increased in size during 1947.

The "Parish Weekly" is printed in a glossy 6x9 inch paper. Number of pages varies according to the quantity of news usually running 10 or more.

Established in 1934, the weekly carries parish news, schedule of services, altar boy appointments and tabulations of collections as well as editorials and reprinted articles.

Among its features are columns written by the parish priests, the Reverend Fathers John Morgan, Francis J. Pegnam and Thomas J. Manly.

Corpus Christi Church, which is the parish of the Rt. Rev. Mgr. William M. Hart, vicar general of the diocese, has the oldest parish publication in the diocese.

"The Corpus Christi Bulletin," a good-sized printed booklet, was started back in 1905, and through the years has been supplying parishioners with important and interesting information.

The Rev. Roy B. Murphy, Rev. Thomas F. McElvagh and Rev. John D. Malley assist Monsignor Hart in editing the bulletin, which enjoys a weekly circulation of 1500 copies.

A fairly recent newcomer to the publishing world is the "Parish News" of Sacred Heart Pro-Cathedral, a four-page mimeographed folder with the same general characteristics as the other two parish papers. Started

Free Academy. He served for three years in the Navy and saw action overseas in the Pacific Theater of Operations. He is in the employ of the Boston Dry-Cleaning Co.
