Couple At Son's Grave in France

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Richards, 3 Chestnut Street, of St. Alphonsus parish, Auburn, returned this week by plane from an overseas trip that took them to France and Ireland.

In St. Avold, France they visited the military cemetery where their son, Staff Sgt. Edward Francis Richards, was buried as an unknown soldier. Sgt. Richards, was a carrier boy for The Catholic Journal when he was a student at St. Alphonsus School, was killed in action in France in January, 1945.

Mr. and Mrs. Richards visited friends in Ireland on their return trip and attended the First Mass of Rev. Francis S. Conway, O.P., in Limerick County. Father Conway was ordained at Holy Cross College, Dublin by Archbishop McDonald on July 13, 1947.

Summer Schools in 24 Parishes

Religious vacation schools in 24 different parishes of the diocese are bringing summertime instruction and recreation to nearly 2500 Catholic children.

Designed to strengthen the faith of the public school child, these parish vacation schools have for more than 10 years been the summer supplement to the religious training given during the school year to children who attend public schools. Registration varies from 200 in several large city parishes to 20 in some rural parishes. School sessions are held each weekday morning during the month of July.

Parish priests, Sisters, seminarians, sodalists and lay-people of each parish direct the religion-and-play activities, using catechetical material and programs furnished by the diocesan office of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine.

Religion and Play

The daily program of the vacation school is a carefully balanced mixture of religion and play designed to help the children enjoy their learning. Study of the catechism is mixed with the singing of hymns and the learning of prayers and religious practises. Sometimes the groups meet in the church or out in the sunshine of the parish yard or nearby playground.

The children find the study pleasant and the remembering easy with the use of a "project book" which the child builds up for himself every day by writing, coloring pictures, answering catechism questions which he is allowed to keep. This year's mimeographed booklets contain clever synopsis of the Life of Christ and the principal features of the Mass.

A typical vacation school, and one of the largest in the diocese, is at St. Patrick's, Rochester. Sister Lucita of the Missionary Servants of the Most Blessed Trinity, directs the busy activities of nearly 150 children assisted by two priests of the parish, Father Bart O'Brien and Father Nicholas Alletto, four Sisters of St. Joseph, several high school girls, and women of the parish. Besides the religious instruction and the play-program the boys learn leatherwork, and make wood and metal craft objects, while the girls have coaching in sewing and leatherwork. They use the facilities of St. Patrick's Church and hall, St. Andrew's Seminary gymnasium and Brown Square playground.

About 75 nuns from the Sisters of Mercy, Sisters of St. Joseph, Trinitarians and the Religious Teachers Filippini staff the vacation schools of the diocese. Great credit goes to the many lay-people of the parishes who drives the buses and private cars which bring the children to the schools and home again and which transport the Sisters from their convents to the schools each day.

The complete list of parishes which are holding the summer schools this year is: Rochester: St. Anne's, St. Anthony's, St. Francis of Assisi, St. Lucy's, St. Patrick's, and Annunciation.
