Study House Set For Veterans

Fathers of the Sacred Hearts are opening a new house of studies designed to meet the needs of veterans and others who feel they have a vocation to the priesthood in a missionary congregation, but who are deficient in formal education.

This missionary congregation is perhaps better known as the religious family which has given to the world one of the greatest heroes of our age Father Damien De Veuster, SS.CC., apostle of the lepers of Molokai.

Another distinguished son of this institute is the world-renowned preacher of the Gospel of Love, Father Mateo Crawley-Boevey, SS.CC., founder and apostle of the Enthronement of the Sacred Heart.

Correspondence from interested veterans or others may be addressed to the Rev. Damien Veny, SS.CC., Sacred Hearts Seminary, Wareham, Mass.

Mother St. Enda, who heads the group, has already spent 27 years in Japan, two of them in a concentration camp. The community's schools, three of which were destroyed during the war, are filled to overflowing, she said. There are now some 48 native members of the community laboring in Japan.

Aquinas National Basketball Fame Recalled by Former Coach's Return

By TOM O'CONNOR

National fame won for Rochester by basketball teams of Aquinas Institute in the early '20s is predicted for the 1947 football team if its members develop the team spirit and play of his boys, former basketball and baseball Coach William E. McCarthy told the Courier-Journal, this week.

Home on terminal leave from the USO with which organization he served 32 months principally directing the NCCS-operated club at Portland, Me., Aquinas' greatest basketball coach was enthusiastic over the progress the game has made in recent years. Basketball, he believes, has reached its greatest peak.

While waiting to join a Rochester organization, McCarthy is preparing a book on the History of Professional Baseball in Rochester. The book will cover the period from 1878 to 1947 and will be replete with anecdotes, humorous and of human interest, and statistics to satisfy fully the baseball fan. Records of 934 pitchers will be revealing to fans, the author says.

Wrote For Courier

A veteran of World War I, ex-Sergeant McCarthy brought out a book on his outfit the 309th Field Artillery in 1920. He also wrote a sports column under the by-line "The Insider" for the Catholic Courier in 1932.

Glories brought to Aquinas Institute, formerly Cathedral High and Rochester Catholic High on the basketball court were recalled as former coach McCarthy talked with their writer who was captain and coach of the first team to represent the school in 1911-1912.

McCarthy talked with this a national record in Tournament competition in Chicago, were runners-up one year, played 13 games and won 10 in three years, had two players chosen for All-American teams and one judged most valuable player in tournament.

Bishop Hickey's Praise

Resultant publicity was given credit by Archbishop Thomas F. Hickey, the school's founder, for success of a fund campaign conducted in 1924 for Aquinas Institute. When the team returned from Chicago the then Bishop of Rochester presented each player with a $5.00 gold piece, McCarthy said.

Names of men who have become well known in Rochester were brought up as McCarthy relived the stirring competition on the hardwood floors of Chicago. His captains were Mort Leary, 1923-1924, now a commercial artist and former Aquinas basketball and baseball coach; "Red" Mason, 1924-1925 and Joe Kennedy, 1925 and 1926.

Kennedy, a Monroe County deputy sheriff met with his former coach this week for the first time since McCarthy left. The coach recalled that in the national tournament game with Cleveland Latin High, which Aquinas won 9 to 8, Joe Kennedy got 8 of the 9 points.

Former coach and player rehashed the three outstanding years and it was brought out that defensive play played a greater part in basketball in those days than in the "race horse" game of today.

Scores Recited

Scores recalled in the first tournament year, 1923 to 1924 were: Aquinas won from Cathedral High, Sioux Falls, S. D., by a score of 30 to 0, thereby establishing a national shut-out record. University of Detroit Prep was defeated 16 to 6. Rockhurst Academy of Kansas City, 13 to 12; and Cathedral High, No Platte, Br 23 to 16. The team lost to LaSalle High, Kansas City, 22 to 15.

The next year the Rochester team played a "suicide schedule." Loyola Academy, Chicago champions were defeated 21 to 18 on their own floor. The team lost to Marquette Prep, Milwaukee, 19 to 15 and won from Catholic High, Decatur, Ind., 22 to 17 in the consolation round for third place.

In the third year at the Chicago National tournament Coach McCarthy recalled he lost eight pounds in three days. That was the year the team lost out in the final championship game to Xavier High School of Louisville, 18 to 17 with Smith of the opposing team sinking a 50-foot shot to put his team ahead for the first time in the game and clinch the trophy.

That was the year Joe Kennedy recalled captaining the team. Besides the Cleveland Cathedral Latin victory, Rochester's representatives defeated LaSalle of Minneapolis, 30 to 18, Spaulding Institute of Peoria, Ill., 17 to 16; and Cathedral High of Wichita, Kansas, 17 to 16. In this game Tommy Marks made good a foul shot after the game had ended 16 to 16 as the whistle blew.

Ex-Coach William E McCarthy (center) home from USO service meets with a former team captain and All-America high school forward, Joe Kennedy (right). They look over Courier-Journal files of 1924 recording national recognition won by their Aquinas Institute basketball teams. Showing the files is Tom O'Connor of the Courier-Journal staff and coach and captain of the first basketball team to represent the Catholic high school in 1911-12.

Chosen All-America

Leo Sullivan was named All-America guard. Joe Kennedy was picked on the All America team in 1926, and "Red" Mason was chosen for most valuable team play in the 1923-24 tournament.

McCarthy and Kennedy brought up names of John O'Reilly, Jack "Scotty" Burns, John "Rip" Riley, Teddy O'Neill, John "Skee" Flynn, George "Jigger" Schaad, Tom Slowe, Frank Walsh, Les Spiegel, Elmer "Whitey" Mason and others. The untimely death of "Yanno" McNally was recalled with deep regret for a great basketball star.

Basketball at old Cathedral High had its start on the outdoor field of Brown Square, later transferred to Cathedral Hall. Early beginnings were mentioned by the writer and McCarthy said 'those were the days when they had to get the janitor to fill out the team."

Father Talbot Condemns 'Academic Isolationism'

Baltimore, Md. (RNS) — Condemning the "academic isolationism" of some colleges and universities, the Rev. Francis Xavier Talbot, S.J., newly-appointed president of Loyola College, declared, upon his arrival here to take over his new duties, that "a school should be a center for an exchange of ideas and information not just among students and teachers but among all members of the community."

Father Talbot plans to have more representatives of local organizations invited to speak at Loyola and take part in its activities, and more representatives of Loyola participate in the activities of the community.

The Jesuit, who for the past three years has been engaged in research and writing at Georgetown University, Washington, D. C., is filling his first educational administrative assignment though he is not a newcomer to the field of education. He was formerly an instructor in literature at Loyola School in New York and Boston College, Mass.

Born fifty-eight years ago in Philadelphia, he was graduated from St. Joseph's College there, entered the Society of Jesus in 1906 and was ordained to the priesthood in 1921. A noted lecturer and author he was for many years editor of America, national Catholic weekly and later edited The Catholic Mind and Thought. One of his major Father Isaac Jogues' missionary literary works is the story of work among the Indians.

Spanish Bishops Issue Pastorals on Election

Madrid (NC) — Before the Spanish people went to the polls for the first time in 11 years to cast an overwhelming vote in favor of a law which confirms General Franco as chief of state and gives him the right to name his successor, a majority of the Spanish bishops had issued pastorals reminding the faithful of their duty to vote.

The measure was adopted by a 12 to 1 vote, 12,628,983 in favor of the law and 643,301 against it. The pastorals of the bishops stressed the obligations of citizens in casting a ballot, and reminded the faithful that they should implore heavenly guidance before voting.

Young Woman Professes Vows In 'Good Shepherd' Order

Sister Mary of Our Lady of Charity, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Goeshar, 141 Rockview Ter., made her final and perpetual vows at a solemn ceremony Thursday, July 31 in the chapel of Holy Angels Home, 1326 Winton Rd. No.

Sister Mary is a religious of the Congregation of Our Lady of Charity of the Refuge, known locally as the Good Shepherd Sisters.

Rev. Francis B. Burns, S.T.L., of St. Bernard's Seminary received the vows, acting as delegate of His Excellency Bishop James E. Kearney.

The novice renewed for life the customary vows of chastity, obedience and poverty, and also the fourth vow which the Institute requires, "to employ herself in the salvation of the souls of persons who shall be received in the Institute."

Officers of Mass

Prior to the profession a High Mass was celebrated by Father Burns. Rev. William J. Duggan, C.S.B., preached the sermon. Ceremonies were in charge of the Rev. Donald B. Beninger, C.S.B.

Present in the sanctuary were the Reverend Fathers George V. Predmore, Roy F. Haggerty and John D. Malley. Music for the Mass was sung by girls of the school under direction of Sister M. Helena, R.S.M.

Attending the private ceremony were only a few relatives and friends of Sister Mary.

The Convent of the Congregation of the Sisters of Our Lady of Charity of the Refuge was founded in Rochester in 1930, by the Convent on Best Street in Buffalo, mother house of the Congregation in North America, under the patronage of the late Bishop John Francis O'Hern.

The Rochester house is now affiliated with other convents of the congregation in the newly formed Federation erected by the Apostolic See in 1944. The Novitiate is located in the Motherhouse of the Federation and young women possessing the necessary prerequisites will be trained there for work in the Rochester Convent.

Sisters of Charity

When they began their work in the diocese of Buffalo the Sisters were called the Sisters of the Good Shepherd to avoid confusion because of the presence of the Sisters of Charity of St. Vincent de Paul, who were already laboring in the diocese.

This title, however, is not accurate, as the Sisters of the Good Shepherd are a distinct religious order, founded by St. Euphrasia in the last century and consequently an offshoot of the original order founded by St. John Eudes in the 17th century.

The specific work of the Institute of Our Lady of Charity is the care of young women and girls to help them meet the problems which they now face or will hereafter meet in the community to the end that they may be enabled to lead a good Christian life and thus save their souls.

The Rochester Convent conducts Holy Angels School on Winton Road, North in the town of Irondequoit, where girls of the "teen" age group are received. The institution is on a boarding school plan and accepts adolescent girls who may be benefited by the care and training which the school offers.

Provision is made for the continuance of their formal education, through a program of both primary and secondary education, under the supervision of both public and diocesan school boards. Training along other lines, especially in home making and domestic science is also provided, to fit them for their place in the community.

The program of the Institution is under the supervision of the New York State Department of Social Welfare, and is also coordinated with the various welfare departments and diocesan charities of the various counties from which the girls come.
