35 Years of Charities Service Marked By 'Miss Mac,' Staff Dean

"I've gotten out of it so much more than I've given." That is the way "Miss Mac" summarizes her thirty-five years of unselfish service to others as a member of the staff of Rochester Catholic Charities.

"Miss Mac" is Elizabeth M. McSweeney, spinster, and secretary-treasurer of the Child Care and Family Division Rochester Catholic Charities.

[illegible] February, 1912, the [illegible] Mickey, [illegible] of Immaculate, seeing the [illegible] for help for needy Catholic [illegible] the formation of [illegible] Charity Guild. Miss McSweeney, who already had [illegible] volunteer service to [illegible] as a member of [illegible] Circle, was among [illegible] to volunteer. A charter [illegible] the Guild and its [illegible] treasurer, also [illegible] as a volunteer until [illegible]

[illegible] Miss Mac" served [illegible] Worker for Catholic [illegible]. "Of course, in the early days, we didn't use the title, 'Visiting Worker,' but it was part of any job to see everyone who came in our office. Our staff was small, and there was much to be done. With the arrival of thousands of Catholic immigrants in this area, the need for our work grew steadily," Miss McSweeney said, "Looking back, it is amazing to see the many activities which grew out of the work we began in such a small scale."

"At first, our work was largely giving material assistance to the needy. As the people of this community looked to us for other kinds of service, we made every effort to meet their needs. As early as 1916, a letter from the Bishop to all the churches strongly urged the use of foster homes for small children. By 1918, we were placing all young children referred to us in foster homes. Our work with unmarried mothers began early, as people looked to us for help of this kind," Miss McSweeney went on.

"For many years, we cooperated with the National Council of Catholic Men in their work with immigrants. We met all

Record of 35 years in Catholic Charities' work is looked over by Miss Elizabeth M. McSweeney, treasurer and senior caseworker of the Child Care and Family Division, Rochester Catholic Charities, with Very Rev. Hugh Harold O. Lambert, diocesan director.

Catholic immigrants arriving in this area, and assisted them in their initial adjustment to this country. This service was discontinued when immigration was virtually eliminated. Now, that we have need for this type of service, we are again working with new arrivals from Europe."

"Miss Mac" recalls with a smile that her beginning salary was thirty-five dollars per month. Of this, thirty dollars was provided by the Men's Charity League, and five dollars by the Bishop himself. The League maintained branches in each parish, and the income from members' dues supported the organization.

"In 1917, Catholic Charities was granted a charter by special act of the State Legislature. Under the authority of this charter, our activities expanded," Miss McSweeney said. "We were authorized to do child placing, adoption work—in fact, the foresight Father Staub and Bishop Hickey displayed in preparing the charter, has permitted us to engage in the many varied activities of a modern social agency without amendment of our charter."

Among the casework activities in which Catholic Charities pioneered was service to unmarried mothers in their own community. Miss McSweeney, and Miss Kathleen d'Olier, present Executive Director, initiated a program of foster home care for these girls. This work attracted nationwide attention, and inquiries were received from widely scattered agencies across the country for information on this new approach to care for the unmarried mother. In 1938, Miss McSweeney took charge of this phase of Catholic Charities' work. In the past nineteen years, "Miss Mac" has personally worked with over 70 girls. "I'm afraid I can't tell you exactly how many," Miss Mac" apologized. "You see, I've always been more interested in my individual girls than in keeping statistics."

Jerusalem — (RNS) — Msgr. Vincent Genai has been appointed Apostolic Administrator of the Latin Rite Patriarchate of Jerusalem by Pope Pius XII, pending nomination of a successor to Patriarch Luigi Barlassina, who died recently.

Auburn CWV In State Pro Basketball Loop

Auburn Already holding practice sessions, the basketball team which will represent the Catholic War Veterans, Post 625, of this city, is planning for a banner season on the hardwood.

The local post will be a member of the State Pro Basketball League which will include teams in Geneva, Cortland, Elmira, Syracuse, Canandaigua and several other towns of Central and Southern New York State.

The league will be divided into two divisions southern and central, according to Thomas P. Shalleross of Marcellus, director of the loop.

Manager Joe Ragusa of the C. W. V. team today stated that the following players have already been working out with the local club: Jack LaVarnway, Jerry and Louie Daly, Bud Krause, Fred Salzer, Johnny Warobick, Joe Falvey, Joe Lynch, Ernie Zammett, Johnny Mohan, Frank Quinn and others.

St. Aloysius' Juniors Win

Auburn St. Aloysius Junior football team maintained their winning streak last Saturday morning on the Seminary grounds by defeating the St. Mary's Juniors, 6-0. The touchdown was made by Rocco Criazzo in the second quarter.

On the winning team are Emileo Colella, Rocco Criazzo, Joe Shea, Wilson Long, Donald Callahan, Ronald McQueoney, Bob Dalton, Bob Connors, Tommy Salva, "Buck" O'Hara, Johnny Massaro, John Arpino, Paul Roderick and Bernard Audet.

Sodality Head Named

Tarby's 635 Sets New High In St. Aloysius League

Auburn — Steve Tarby has settled down to real serious bowling as demonstrated last Sunday when he put together games of 207, 176 and 225 for 635, a new high three game total for the St. Aloysius Holy Name Bowling League. Tarby's great bowling was the chief reason that the league-leading Loyola team took three points from Canisius. Biss Costello's 501 and Captain Bill Bishop's 171 and 183 in the first and third games were a good supplement to Tarby's 635.

Captain Sonny Geno's 511 and Sammy Colella's 491 were best for Canisius and helped to stave off a whitewash. Sonny Geno was happy despite his team's loss because he beat out his father and brother.

Gonzaga bounded back Sunday with a new and improved style of atomic bowling by blasting Notre Dame for the whole four points. Paul Friedel led off the atomic bowlers with 559 followed by Captain Jim Kennedy (who is doing a great job as anchor man) with 556 and John Bodnar was next with 552. With three men in the 550 class and Charlie Rice keeping up his improved bowling plus Bud Graney's jump out of his slump, Gonzaga came within eight points of setting a new three game high total. Their 2560 was high for the day and Gonzaga has the consulation of knowing that they have rolled the highest total without benefit of a handicap.

Notre Dame, by being whitewashed, gained sole possession of last place. Even John Terry, the lone "Fighting Irishman" could not prevent this disaster. Terry with 503 as a total and especially his 212 game tried hard but did not receive any cooperation.

Georgetown and Santa Clara fought the closest match of the day. Each team received two points. Bud Wilson of the Georgetown team bounced back into the 500 class by knocking the pins for a 571 total, the third high of the day. His team-mate, Bill Sullivan, also was back in the select group with a 525 total.

Harold Jones of Santa Clara is looking more like the champ bowler he was a few years ago as he garnered a 533 total. Reliable Joe Geogan came through with 524 to help Santa Clara to an even break.

Holy Cross is coming on and on Sunday, they took three points from Villanova to stay one point behind Loyola who are beginning to be worried. Paul J. Garney, who is having a very good year, continues to bowl in the 180 class by totaling 562 and being the chief reason for the Crusaders' victory.

Father Haffey got his "all or nothing" ball working in the second game and hit 241 for second high single which also helped to secure the one point Villanova obtained to vacate the last place spot. Vernon Pinckney continued his 500 bowling by getting 509. Vern has been in the 500 class the last three weeks.
