Father Masse Expresses Labor Views

His views on management and labor are expounded by the Rev. Benjamin L. Masse, S.J., (left), associate editor of America, in Rev. Patrick J. Flynn, editor, Courier-Journal, at Powers Hotel during sessions of Freeman's Union conference, Saturday. Father Masse was heard at the Courier-Journal News Sunday in an interview with Rev. Richard T. Torrey, associate editor of the Courier-Journal.

Calls Taft-Hartley Law 'Bungled' Legislation

The Rev. Benjamin L. Masse, S.J., associate editor of America, national Catholic weekly, believes that the Taft-Hartley Law is a "bungled piece of legislation" which fails when examined in the light of moral principles.

Father Masse presented his views when he addressed the confidential conference of the New York State Council of International Fraternal Promoters and Assistants Union (AFL) in the Powers Hotel.

He counseled the trade unionists to take their criticism of the new labor laws more precisely.

"In discussing the moral aspects of labor legislation," the priest explained, "the general principles involved are so clear as to be obvious to everybody. They are mainly three: first, the right of free choice of occupation; second, the right of free choice of association; and third, the right of free choice of religion."
