Hollywood
Academy Award Surprises
By W. H. Mooring

W. H. Mooring

This year's nominations for Academy awards present a few surprises. In case yo wonder how thes annual Oscars are bestowed you'll be surprised to learn that 450 movies from various parts of the world were eligible for recognition. Each qualified by having been shown publicly for not less than a week in the metropolitan area of Los Angeles between January 1st and 31st, 1947 inclusive. That let out "The Fugitive" completely and, some think, deliberately.

Five candidates in each of the various classes were nominated by the Screen Actors Guild, The Screen Directors Guild, the Screen Writers Guild and representative members of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. Whew! It is as comprehensive as that, but still never becomes anything more, in spirit or effect, than one colossal Hollywood mutual admiration society.

Between now and March 20th, when the final awards will be declared, a ballot will be taken among the Academy membership as a whole, to select the finalist in each category.

THE FIVE FILMS nominated include "The Bishop's Wife" (Goldwyn - RKO) "Crossfire" (RKO), "Gentleman's Agreement" (20th Century Fox), "Great Expectations," choosing that rather than "Miracle on 34th Street" only because the latter was stupidly marred by dragging in the divorce theme.

The result, however, seems to be a foregone conclusion. Even before the nominations came out I expected "Gentleman's Agreement" to walk off with the Oscar. I still think it will. You cannot stop a mutual admiration society from being mutual.

IN THE "BEST ACTOR" class are Ronald Colman ("A Double Life"), John Garfield ("Body and Soul"), Gregory Peck (Gentleman's Agreement"), William Powell ("Life With Father") and Michael Redgrave ("Mourning Becomes Electra"). On points we can eliminate Garfield. Because he is not one of Hollywood's own I think Redgrave has to go too. That leaves Colman, Peck and Powell. Ronald Colman has been nominated before and failed to make it. Sentiment is on his side. But it is on Peck's side too, because he has been nominated and has been built up for two or three years as a worthy candidate. This year I expect to see him carry off the Oscar because "Gentleman's Agreement" is set to all but sweep the board. His only real threat is Colman, with Powell as a possible "dark horse."

In the "best actress" class we have Joan Crawford for "Possessed," though what possessed the selection committees to include her is beyond me. Dorothy Maguire for Gentleman's Agreement," Susan Hayward for "Smash up," Rosalind Russell for "Mourning Becomes Electra," and Loretta Young for "The Farmer's Daughter."

Joan has "had it." Susans performance as a drunk cannot win enough votes. Rosalind is almost certain to win this year. Her performance in "Mourning" is as significant as the fact that although the acting nominations include both Rosalind and her co-star Redgrave, the film itself comes nowhere into the Academy nominating.

Among the directors lined up are Henry Koster ("The Bishop's Wife"), Edward Dmytryk ("Crossfire"), George Cukor ("A Double Life"), Elia Kazan ("Gentleman's Agreement"), and David Lean ("Great Expectations").

LEAN HAS INDEED just that sort of chance. Koster deserves, but is unlikely to get the Oscar. Neither Cukor nor Dmytryk seem to stand a chance against Kazan who will I think, carry off the award, not only on the strength of Hollywood sentiment over his picture but because he has been doing memorable stuff ever since his first film, "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn."

The supporting actors in the swim include Charles Bickford ("The Farmer's Daughter"), Thomas Gomez ("Ride the Pink Horse") Edmund Gwenn ("Miracle on 34th Street"), Robert Ryan ("Crossfire"), and Richard Widmark ("Kiss of Death"). Gomez, Gwenn and Ryan share the better chances. Gwenn deserves and may get the award. Ryan is his biggest threat.

The suporting actress class, by unaccountable oversight fails to include Jessica Tandy for her best of all supporting actress performances in "A Woman's Vengeance."

It includes instead Ethel Barrymore ("The Paradine Case"), Gloria Grahame ("Crossfire"), Celeste Holm ("Gentleman's Agreemnt"), Marjorie Main ("The Egg and I") and Anne Revere ("Gentleman's Agreement"). Ethel has had her Oscar, as most voters will remember. Personally I'd give it to Marjorie Main but Gloria Grahame, Anne Revere and Celeste Holm all stand a better chance of getting it. This is the toughest race in the whole card and I name Celeste as the most likely winner.

Now try picking out your own likely winners, just to prove that you, too, can be wrong.

Catholic Air Unit Started

Washington — (NC) — Plans for a service organization for Catholic broadcasters have been completed by an eight-member committee representing Catholic broadcasters throughout the U. S. and Canada.

Means for exchanging scripts, information on broadcasting problems, and facilitating cooperation among Catholic radio broadcasters were outlined at the meeting.

William C. Smith, radio director of the National Council of Catholic Men, was elected acting chairman of the organization. A draft of a constitution for the Catholic Broadcasters Association was also prepared for submission to the annual convention of the association which will be held in June.

The committee pointed out that the aim of the association is to act as a central point for dissemination of information and for mutual exchange of ideas and services that will assist members.

ON THE AIR
With Bill Smith

Let's Get Rid of Radio

Wait a minute, folks, I didn't say that. I am only quoting from a magazine that has devoted practically its entire February issue to radio. The magazine is called "Integrity."

Bill Smith

I have heard radio called all kinds of names, but this issue of Integrity really spits on its hands and goes to town when it comes to panning radio.

Let's start with page one of the magazine—as good a place as any. Page one is the work of the editors, and it lets radio have it right between the eyes when it says: "Radio stands high in the list of regrettable modern inventions."

Think that's bad? Stick around, and I'll let you have a couple more of the editors' remarks on this regrettable invention.

* * *

LET'S SKIP DOWN a couple of paragraphs: "The script writers, actors, announcers and other radio talent are the creatures of these avaricious masters (the station-owners and advertisers), and are among the most degraded members of modern society."

I am sorry for the editors of Integrity. Maybe they haven't met many people in radio. I have. I know script writers (some of them priests), actors, announcers, musicians; and I don't know any that I would call degraded.

Don't go away now. I still have a couple more for you. Get this: "So," say the editors, "shall we get rid of radio? It is a foolish question. Would we could get rid of it, but it is not ours to get rid of. Furthermore, it exists only in consequence of our several sins . . ."

Well, all I can say is that if we ought to get rid of radio, then we ought to get rid of all books, and magazines and motion pictures and telephones, and automobiles and trains and central heating and indoor plumbing, lest these things be an occasion of sin to somebody. And then, finally, I think the smart thing to do would be to get rid of people—for if we did, there wouldn't be any more sin in the world. And I guess the good God should have got rid of the angels, for some of them fell too.

* * *

AT ANY RATE, I thought you would be interested in the most wham-ho beating over the head I have ever seen radio get. All the people who have condemned soap operas, crime programs, singing commercials, the FCC, the NAB, Petrillo, and all the other fancied or real ills radio is supposed to be heir to, are just a bunch of amateurs compared with this issue of Integrity.

And then, to top it off, the cover of the magazine carries a picture of a microphone with a station identification sign over it labeled: WIND. The caption on the cover consists of the great words of St. Paul: "If I speak with the tongues of men and angels, and have not charity, I am become as sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal."

Perhaps I was thinking of the late Pope Pius X, who spoke of the radio station at the Vatican as "this magnificent instrument of communication."

Bishop Slates 'Career With God' Topic On WHAM

His Excellency, Bishop Kearney, speaking on "A Career With God" on Station WHAM at 12:10 p. m., Sunday, March 7, will open a series of 4 radio talks on vocations as a March feature of "The Sunday Edition of the Courier-Journal" broadcast each week on WHAM. Bishop Kearney will tell how the Church needs new recruits in the religious communities at home and in foreign lands and will describe the attractions that draw young people to a career in religion. The St. Andrew's Seminary Choir will sing under the direction of Rev. William Riefer.
