Army Nurse Hurt In N. Y. Fall

Waterloo - Mrs. M. L. Flynn, 304 W. Main St., has received word that her daughter, First Lt. Florence Flynn, 30 an Army Nurse, has suffered a fractured skull in an accident.

According to the information, Lieutenant Flynn was hurt Friday night in a fall from a moving stair in Brooklyn. Hospital attendants at Fort Hamilton Hospital in Brooklyn where the nurse was taken told her mother that the young woman had been taken ill in the cab and opened the car door after an unsuccessful attempt to get the driver to open a window. She had just reported off duty at the Fort Hamilton Hospital and was taking the taxi to a nearby subway when the accident occurred.

Lieutenant Flynn is a graduate of Waterloo High School where she was valedictorian of her class, Nazareth College, Rochester, and of Johns Hopkins Hospital School of Nursing in Baltimore. She served on the staff of Johns Hopkins Hospital for a time following her graduation and later was on the staff of Waterloo Memorial Hospital before entering the Army Nurses Corps on Jan. 1, 1945.
