Approximately 100 members of the Court attended the breakfast which followed 8:30 a. m. Mass in St. Ann's Church at which 200 women received Holy Communion in a body.

There is a great need, Father Coonan said, for a strong influence to counteract the false doctrines and evil propaganda so widespread today.

FATHER COONAN, expressing the ideas of Pope Pius in his messages to Catholic women, explained that "the events of the past few years show that women must take a new position in the world."

Women have the opportunity to improve world conditions, he continued, in molding public opinion by emphasizing the woman's obligation to combat these philosophies by expressing true Christian attitudes whenever the opportunity presents itself.

Miss Margaret Barrett of Corning, district deputy of the Catholic Daughters of America, reminded the Hornell Court of its responsibility to be informed on current legislation.

The national organization, she said, was the first group to ask for legislation to give displaced persons a chance for a new life.
