Pontiff Grooms Crippled Tots

Rome—RNS—About 100 children who were crippled as a result of the war were received in a unique audience here by Pope Pius XII. The youngsters represented 15,000 Italian children who were so maimed.

Pope Pius was presented with a picture painted by a boy whose hands were blown off during the war years.

The painting, which showed a robin in a cage, was given as a remembrance of the legend that the robin has had a red breast ever since the day one of them flew so close to the crucified Christ that His blood colored the bird's breast.
