Central Union To Hold State Meet At Schenectady

Rochester's delegation to the annual convention of New York State Branch, Catholic Central Union of America in Schenectady will leave by special coach, New York Central Station, Saturday, Sept. 4 at 6:13 a.m. Secretary Charles Mara of the Rochester branch will be in charge.

HNS Central Office Moved

Transfer of the Diocesan Holy Name Union Central Office from its temporary State Street location to 35 Selo Street, in the same building as the Catholic Courier-Journal, was announced this week by the executive committee. For the present the executive secretary, Arthur P. Farren, may be reached through the Courier-Journal telephone, Stone 1186. The new office address that of the Rev. Patrick J. Flynn, diocesan director of the Holy Name Society.

Name Activities Leaders, Holy Name Branches Urged

Officers of parish Holy Name Societies have been urged to devote a portion of their September meetings to the selection and appointment of committee chairmen for the fall and winter activities.

Lewis A. Schur, president of the Diocesan Holy Name Union, this week called upon all parish units to exert every effort to bring the Society nearer "its potential influence in the religious and community life of the diocese."

"HOLY NAME men well know," Schur declared, "that the influence of our Society is measured first and foremost by the thousands of men throughout the diocese who receive Holy Communion in a body at Mass on the second Sunday of each month."

"Many other worthwhile things can be accomplished, however," Schur pointed out, "by active leadership in the organizations. Officers should select from the ranks men who will interest themselves in the specific work of various committees."

"Officers and committee chairmen, from time to time, will receive literature from our new Central Office, and should be ready to put into effect some of the suggestions that will be advanced. "PARISH OFFICERS should remember that no executive committee by itself can do all the work necessary for a successful organization. Committee chairmen and the membership must be behind any project to assure its successful accomplishment. That is why we wish to stress to parish officers their need to select men for committee heads who have
