Private Schools Curbed in Egypt

Cairo, Egypt — (NC) — Foreign educators in Egypt are alarmed by a new law which places foreign and private schools—known as "free schools" — under government control and tends to restrict the freedom of religious teaching.

Within the scope of the measure come the 200 schools operated by Catholic Religious, the American University of Cairo, the American Mission School of Assiout, and several British and French schools.

ALL THESE institutions can hardly accept the new law in full without renouncing their individuality both in methods and purpose. Hitherto they have been able to render a splendid service to the people of Egypt, and members of the government and most of the prominent Egyptians are alumni of these institutions.

Particular anxiety is being felt by the leaders of free educational institutions at Article XII of the new law, which provides that no school can teach its pupils any religion other than their own, and that applies even in the case of parental consent.

This article was, no doubt, inspired by the fear of proselytism among the Moslems who under no circumstances will accept the principles of freedom of conversion of a Moslem to another creed.

Legion Presents Flag To School

A beautiful American flag was presented to SS. Peter and Paul's School, Elmira, last week by Harry K. Bentley Post of the American Legion.

Appropriate ceremonies were held at the school with the pupils participating.

The flag will be displayed every day in front of the school.

Thanks of the parish to the American Legion were expressed in "The Chimes," parish publication.

Layman Editor Writes Series for 'America'

New York — (NC) —Declaring it to be "something new in the Catholic scheme of things" that clergymen should consult a layman on how to shape their Sunday sermons, the editors of America, national Catholic weekly, announce that Joseph A. Breig, editor and columnist for the Catholic Universe Bulletin of Cleveland, has been asked to write a series of weekly Gospel reflections.

The decision to turn America's weekly sermon column, "The Word," over to Mr Breig, "makes it possible for 10,000 priest readers to get some hints on how the Gospel for the coming Sunday impresses the father of a large and growing family," the announcement states.

The editors of America express the hope that the columns contributed by Mr Breig will foster an "uncelibate spirituality" and induce thousands of other families to imitate the Breigs in talking about Christ and His meaning for them.

Teen-age Parties To Be Resumed At St. Hyacinth

Auburn — Last fall the St. Hyacinth's Theresas conducted successfully a series of Teen-Age Jamboree. At that time a Juke Box furnished the music for the Young Set.

The Polish Home on State Street donated the use of their splendid dance hall for a series of dances beginning November 7 and November 17.

Not only the Teen but also the Ty Agers are invited. Admission will be free to all through the courtesy of the American Federation of Musicians from the recording and transcription Fund.

The committee in charge of the dances is as follows: Jane Bojcun, chairman; Mary and Helen Leja, co-chairman; Joan Sikora and Mary Pelc, decoration; Stella Sierrefia, Theresa Janas and Theresa Grzasko, publicity; Marie Nowak, Marie Tarala, Barbara Tama, Virginia Luczak, Florence Sidor and Stella Sidor, usherettes.

Belgium Catholics Have New Weekly

Brussels — (NC) — Meeting a long felt need, a new Catholic weekly, "De Vlaamsche Linie," (The Flemish Line) has been established here and its first edition of 25,000 was sold out within a few hours. Two Jesuit priests are the editors of the paper.

Edited to deal particularly with the problems of the Flemish part of Belgium the new paper declared that if Flanders was to depart from its faith in Christ, Flemish spiritual as well as political life and Flemish art would come to an end. The choice is between Catholicism and paganism the editors pointed out, calling for the utmost exertions of the most talented of the Flemish people to bring about the rebirth of Flanders in Christ.
