Elmira Catholic Highlights
By KATHERINE CARSTATER
Events at Elmira Catholic High School this week are proving to be ones of mingled joy and sorrow. With the quarterly examinations beginning on Monday, this aspect of the study in any language however, the latter part of the week will bring the joy to the study to Rochester for the Marian Congress. This event has been eagerly anticipated all fall and the number of those who plan to attend has swelled to forty.
A Sodality Council meeting for November was held last Friday afternoon and committee meetings are expected to take place this week.
Fourth year English students have for the past few weeks been deeply absorbed in the reading of Shakespeare's "Macbeth" which was claimed this week by a recording, making the drama even more realistic. Both seniors and juniors are fortunate in having the opportunity to attend "Romeo and Juliet" which is performing next Monday in Elmira.
REHEARSALS for the senior play "Almost Eighteen", a delightful combination of pathos and laughter, are being held regularly four times a week. This comedy in three acts will be presented in the evenings of December 13 and 14 Katherine Carstater, Edward Lolicio, Thomas Agan and Rose Marie Cirulli will be seen in the leading roles, although each part may be said to be of equal importance.
Class pictures for the juniors were taken last week, arranged by Pat Donahue. Under the "Editor in Chief," Edward Lolicio and Associate Editors, Pat Donahue and Katherine Carstater, the literary staff is composed of Kathleen Cloke, Theresa Cornacchia, Elizabeth Evans, James Owens, Bob McGill, James Murphy, Michael Morgan, Pete Fennell, Jeanette Peterson, Maureen Maloney, Mary Helen Sullivan, Barbara Gilroy, Lois Riley, Teresa Richards, Nan Hourigan, Joan Milliken, Mary Rose Turner and Norman Hoxey.
Mary Helen Sullivan of the senior class caused quite a sensation the other night at the Halloween party held by St. Patrick's Sodality and we were not surprised to learn that she captured the prize for having the funniest costume.
Rosary Unit Meets At Hammondsport
Hammondsport Mrs. Andrew Vander Empten, delegate to the NCCW reported at the Rosary Society meeting of St. Gabriel's held following devotional services in the church Mrs. Louis Naitale, newly elected president, presided.
Members agreed to make layettes for the needy but plans to be distributed through the offices of the Holy Father.
Following the business meeting Mrs. W. C. Abel and Mrs. Stanley Kolo served refreshments.
