Aquinas Points for 8th Win in Turkey Day Clash

Coach Harry Wright's Aquinas Institute gridders and 20,000 Rochester fans are anticipating a double Thanksgiving Day banquet. Before wading into turkey and all the holiday trimmings at home, they hope to enjoy the season's greatest Aquinas victory at the Red Wing Stadium where the unbeaten Irish face St. Benedict's Prep of Newark, N. J. at 11 a. m. Nov. 25.
 Billed as the toughest opponent in a schedule of big-city teams which Aquinas has beaten with overwhelming power, the Benedictine visitors are expected to offer the stiffest competition of the year. Given a bright day, the holiday crowd will be the largest of the season and should see the Little Irish pushed to the limit of trickery and speed to retain their unbeaten record.
 So far in seven victories Aquinas has scored 213 points to their visitors' 43. The total attendance at the seven home games was 123,390 spectators.

THE ROCHESTER squad rolled over their seventh straight opponent last Sunday afternoon before a crowd of 18,924 when they drove through Mt. Carmel High School of Chicago for a 32-12 victory.
 Romping 319 yards on the ground behind the heavy, rough charging line, Aquinas backs Catalano, Ging, Barbera and Della Villa scored in every quarter. Charley Mayo completed only four of ten passes for 34 yards but the ground attack aided by sparkling downfield blocking was enough to keep Chicago on the defensive most of the afternoon.
 The Aquinas second-string team was in charge when the visitors made both touchdowns. The Carmelites pushed through the weaker line repeatedly in the second half to score twice on 76-yard and 80-yard drives led by fast halfback Dick Ehl and Quarterback Jim Gibbons.
ST. BENEDICT'S Prep accepted the Aquinas bid to replace the cancelled Erie Prep game confident that no high school squad could wipe out their record as the outstanding Catholic team on the East Coast. Founded 80 years ago, the 700-student school trains boys passing from high school to college. Its heavy athletic schedule attracts players who have
