Adler Declares World Government Inevitable

World government not only is necessary and possible but inevitable, Mortimer J. Adler, University of Chicago philosopher, told a Christian Culture Lectures Series audience at Aquinas Institute on Nov. 14.

A leading exponent of world federation, Adler strongly insisted that existing governments must sacrifice national sovereignty or face "the incredible destruction of the next world war" which might result in despotic rule by one nation.

"The promise that world government is necessary to world peace," Adler continued, "can be as clearly demonstrated as any problem in geometry."

Declaring that "the world is still at war," the speaker asserted that "we now have not peace, but peace—a plurality of peace; nations are awaiting only the dropping of the first bomb."

PREDICTING THAT BY 1953-55, if not before, "the East also will have the atom bomb," Adler said "we have five to seven years to do what it may not be possible to do." This, he pointed out, is to educate the world to the need for a world federation, which must come either voluntarily or by force.

"It will be unity or chaos, world government or war, one world or none," he declared.

The United Nations organization, he said, "cannot possibly succeed, because it isn't based on government. It can't make laws, it can't enforce them. The veto ensures national sovereignty, and as an organization for enforcing peace, the United Nations will fail." It might serve however, he added, "as a valuable instrument in popularizing world government."

Admitting that a world federalist government would not be a guarantee of peace, Adler pointed out that there could be under it "a world civil war." But after such a war, he noted, would come peace; while "after our present international wars there is no peace."

Termining the UN a "debating society for diplomats," the speaker said "the thing to get rid of first are the diplomats." They cannot be assured of "keeping the conversation going," he declared, because of conflicting national interests.

"We must perfect some kind of machinery such as exists in the nation's courts," he maintained, "to enable talking to continue and shooting to cease. Diplomats will always fail because war lies at the end of their best arguments as a last alternative."

All signs point to the decline of 19th Century capitalism and of communism, Adler stated. The necessary middle ground will be reached and East and West brought together, he said, "when we become more socialistic than we are and the Russians become more capitalistic than they are."

Adler was one of several world leaders who started in 1946 to work out a World Constitution. The resulting document has just been published, he said. It divides the world into nine regions and designates what powers are to be given the world government and what to remain with the separate states. It deals with

Thanksgiving

Lord God, we give Thee thanks this day,
Humbly, in our simple way,
For all the gracious gifts which Thou
Hast designed so richly to endow—
For life—for every passing minute—
For this, Thy world, and all things in it!

We give Thee thanks, dear Lord, for these—
The green beneficence of trees,
The kindness of rain, the birth
Of springtime from a barren earth—
The earth that bears the bread we break
In gratitude for Thy sweet sake.

We thank Thee, Lord, for healing song,
For courage, wise and tall and strong;
For all the laughter and the tears
That mold the pattern of our years;
For truth and trust and constancy,
For faith that lets us lean on Thee!

We give Thee thanks for ears to hear,
For feet to tread Thy pathways here,
For hands to touch, and lips to sing
Thy name in every lovely thing—
For friendship with our fellow men—
But mostly for Thy love.

AMEN
