Catholic Theater in Boston Hailed for Drama Success

Boston—(RNS)—A Catholic Theater—the first in New England—has opened its doors here and with three dramatic successes to its credit promises to become an outstanding local theatrical project.

Organized to present not merely Catholic plays but all "good dramatic entertainment which does not violate canons of morality or good taste," the theater already is drawing non-Catholic as well as Catholic audiences.

FOUNDER of the enterprise is Edward P. O'Donnell, Catholic layman and stock actor and for the past 14 years director of amateur theatrical groups in Boston.

A number of distinguished Catholic actors and actresses have pledged support to the undertaking and will appear in forthcoming plays.

While thus far the plays have been college dramatic groups or amateurs of unusual ability, professional talent gradually will be incorporated into the theater.

Junior Quiz-Down Sets New Record

Junior Quiz-Down, sponsored weekly by WHEC and the Rochester Democrat & Chronicle had a history-making session at last Saturday's contest between pupils of St. Stanislaus School and Our Lady of Lourdes school.

The publishers of the Book of Knowledge, awarded each week to the winning school, considering the outstanding performance of both teams, donated two first prizes of the twenty-volume sets for their schools.

A score of 1,200 points is average for a team if each answer of the normal contest time the score was tied at 1,400 and after five extra periods the score had risen to a new high tie of 2,576 out of a possible 2,600.

Teams were: Our Lady of Lourdes: Marion Grauert, John Roche, Thomas Sokrak, William Carey, Donald Woods, Mary Anne McGrath; St. Stanislaus: Joseph Janewiak, John Bart, Rita Gook, Yvonne Lettau, Donald Pleukun, Jva.
