Facilities Allow Nurses To Play

Physical Program Opened For Elmira Student Nurses

A recreation program for student nurses of St. Joseph's Hospital, Elmira, has been instituted with facilities for basketball, volleyball and badminton, pingpong and shuffleboard in the auditorium of the Nurses' residence.

All new equipment has been secured for this gymnasium which doubles as an auditorium by installing folding chairs stored close by.

FRIDAY IS the regular night for the students who enjoy badminton, volleyball, pingpong and shuffleboard, all at the same time. After about an hour, the court is turned over to the basketball team. Although this might seem pretty strenuous after a hard day's work in the hospital, the students say that, on the contrary, it really gives a girl a lift after a heavy schedule of hospital and class work.

Students are free to come to the gymnasium at any time to improve their games or to get exercise. Other groups availing themselves of the gym facilities are the interns and technicians. The program is under direction of Adrian Bourque, head of the Department of Physical Therapy at the hospital. Joseph Carrillo, who is coach of St. Casimir's Elmira Intermediate Church Basketball League, is basketball coach.

Clergy, Laity Praise Editor

The Rev. Aloysius Coogan, editor of the Catholic Missions magazine, New York addressing O'Connor, stated:

"IN THIS titanic work of clarification and instruction to which we are called by the times, the Press has not merely a work to do. It has THE work to do! See that you do it well!"

"God grant you grace to write well of Him in times that know Him not. Then may you see Him face to face, for a personal and happy interview when your last line is written, when your last page is put to bed, and when you get your final — and eternal — assignment."

Series of congratulatory messages included one from the Most Rev. Michael J. Ready, Bishop of Columbus and episcopal chairman of the N.C.W. Press Department, who was unable to attend because of illness and sent his "warmest good wishes."

William A. Lang, vice-president of the Rochester Transit Corporation and former Courier Journal staff member, was toast master. Norman A. O'Brien was chairman of the dinner committee.
