College History Display Feature of Silver Jubilee

A local history display at Nazareth College features items tracing the growth of Catholicism in Western New York to supplement the material exhibited by the Freedom Train and to commemorate the Silver Jubilee of the Catholic women's college.

Sponsored by the students of the Social Studies Department under chairman Jean Reinhardt, the exhibit is open to the public in a room of the Nazareth College library during the jubilee celebration.

In a setting of blue and gold, the New York State colors, are displayed articles secured from the Rochester Museum, from Dr. Alexander M. Stewart, authority on New York State Indian Missions, from Rochester Gas and Electric, from the college library and from local historians.

AMONG THE EXHIBITS are books, maps and documents on early New York State history. These include a copy of the first map drawn of the Great Lakes region by a Father Rafferty in 1688 and maps showing the location of the Jesuit missions in this section of the state.

The collection also boasts a hymnal in the language of the Seneca Indians, written by Father Jacques Frémin, S.J., and set to plain chant. Still in use at the Indian reservation at Caughnawaga, near Montreal, it was used at Tonawanda, now Rochester Junction, and the scene is commemorated in a mural at Nazareth painted by the art students of the class of 1948. The college mission unit is named after Father Frémin.

Catholic history in the Rochester area is highlighted by portraits of the five Bishops, and many priests and sisters. Copies of the Rev. Dr. Frederick J. Zwierlein's "Bishop McQuaid, Rev. Robert McManis's "A Century of Grace" and an account of the first Mass celebrated in New York State, are a part of this section.

A special exhibit of pamphlets, papers, and pictures connected with the history of Nazareth College is also set up.

Items of general interest include models of colonial rooms and furniture, a model of Scrantom's cabin, another of the first bridge across Genesee River, school books, slates and other implements used in the early schools, cobbler's tools, spinning wheels, charts on the making of lenses and of buttons.

Polish Girls Find Haven In U. S. Convent

New Orleans (NC) — Four Polish women, who were among the first shipload of 843 displaced persons from Europe to arrive in New Orleans, have found a happy haven in the U. S. Convent here.

Mother Margaret Mary Clarke, superior, had filed a request for eight young women among the DP's and is hoping that four more will be sent to the convent.

THE FOUR were uprooted from their homes in Poland and forced to work in hospitals in Germany. After the war, they decided against returning to their native land, overrun by communists, and for the last three years have existed in the cramped misery of DP camps.

In contrast, they now are quartered in comfortable single rooms in a wing of the building where a dormitory of the school borders is located. They have pleasant surroundings and sympathetic care.

THE FOUR are: Maria Kulczek, 39, cook; Johanna Wierbel, 27, and Veronica Pilczuk, 24, who are qualified for nursing and housemaid duties, and Edna Krakowiak, 22, a nurse. Each speaks only a few words of English, but all are confident they will soon learn the language from the Sisters, other employees and the students, who range from grammar school to college age.

Despite the language handicap, the Sisters make themselves understood. For example, one of the nuns noticed that Johanna has a cough. The nun picked up a Polish-English dictionary of the new arrival and sought in vain the word for "cough syrup." Undismayed, the nun held up the bottle of medicine, a spoon and made signs indicating a cough. She was able to get across to Johanna that she was to take a spoonful of the cough syrup every three hours.

WATCHES WHICH the new arrivals brought with them are already the talk of the convent. One has an attractive ceramic plaque of the Madonna and Child, another a distinctive Polish picture, icon style, of the Mother and Child. Their baggage included prayer books and missals, and even featherbeds.

The four had been in the convent only a few hours when a nun gave one of them a bit of direction — half motions, half words — on something to be done. The nun was astounded when the Polish girl smiled and said "Okay."

Society Opens Fund For New Stations

A project to raise funds for purchasing new Stations of the Cross for St. Peter and Paul's Church, Elmira has been launched by the Immaculate Heart Society, according to "The Church" parish publication.

The Stations will be the Society's gift to the church and will fit in with future decoration plans for the edifice.

Donation of a new pulpit by a donor desiring to remain anonymous was reported in the paper. A new set of white vestments to be used for the first time on the occasion of the church's 100th anniversary is being made by a donor for the vestments as a gift.

Manufacturing Firm Add $12,500 For Hospitals

A $12,500 subscription by the Wilmot Castle Company, manufacturers of sterilizers and surgical lighting equipment, has been added to the growing list of contributions to the Rochester Hospital Fund, according to Raymond E. Leinen, chairman of the fund's corporations committee.

"This generous subscription is further evidence of the widespread support manifested by Rochester's business concerns for the fund's $8,940,000 program of hospital expansion and modernization," Leinen said.
