Italian Priest Visits Brother

(Continued from Page 1-A) trymen. "I want to give my country's thanks for U. S. aid to as many people as I can meet," he said. Monsignor Lombardo paid tribute to the Marshal Plan which he credited with helping to put Italy back on her feet economically.

"The big problem today," he told the Courier Journal, "is industrial unemployment. Industry is not prosperous enough and has not the equipment to provide enough jobs to alleviate the hardships caused by unemployment."

During the transition period of the war when the Germans were moving out and the Americans moving up, Monsignor Lombardo was the anchor of the townspeople of Piopramelara, the small Italian village where his parish is located.

"Like a good many other priests in wartime," he explained, "I had to assume temporal as well as spiritual leadership in a crisis which confused and frightened the people." He organized the people and was the first person in the village to talk to the American Army by telephone before they took over Piopramelara.

The majority of the Italian people were not against the allies in the war. Monsignor Lombardo asserted. "The courage of their underground testified to that."

College Praised On Anniversary

(Continued from Page 1-A) French Revolution brought on by the ideas of Rousseau and Voltaire the Einstein atomic theory and the ideas of Karl Marx.

"IDEAS ARE so important," the speaker said, "that the Sisters of St. Joseph are offering their lives to implant truly sound ideas in your minds and your hearts. Ideas that are founded on the love of God and His justice."

Participating in the Silver Jubilee celebration were the Rev. Louis Edelman of Pittsford, one of the original faculty members, the Rev. Mother Rose Miriam, president of the college since 1929, and Sister Teresa Marie, dean of Nazareth since the opening 25 years ago in the structure known as the "Glass House" in Lake Avenue.

After Mass a joint faculty-student breakfast featured tributes from the college leaders. A member of the first graduating class, Mrs. Elmer G. Costich of Stonehenge Rd. attended escorted by her daughter, Constance, 19, a Nazareth Sophomore.

The students entertained the public in the evening with a concert by the Glee Club in the auditorium. J. Theodore Hollenbach directed the 130-voice group. Solos were sung by Julie Nalbach, Marlon Welch and Cecilia Chang, talented Chinese student.
