Medical Work Of Missionaries Wins Souls By Healing The Sick

New York —(RNS)— New York newsmen got an insight last week into one of the most impressive phases of Christian missionary work—that carried on by medical missionaries in parts of the world where millions of people still lack the benefits of modern medicine.

When reporters asked 74-year-old Dr. Albert Schweitzer, famed the world's foremost medical missionary, who is now on his first visit to the United States, why he had selected medicine as a means of serving humanity he replied:

"Because in medicine you can act without having to talk."

FOR MORE than a century, Christian missionaries have recognized that works of social service must lie at the foot of all missionary activity. In other words, it is not enough to preach the Gospel to the pagan peoples of China, Africa, or elsewhere; they must be shown Christianity in practice and action.

Theology and medicine have been linked together since the earliest Christian missionaries devoted themselves to the sick and needy, but organized, professional medical missions are comparatively modern.

In the United States, as in other countries, virtually every major Protestant denomination which sends missionaries abroad earmarks sizable sums of money for the upkeep of hospitals, dispensaries, and clinics, and the maintenance of doctors and nurses in mission lands. The same is true of the Roman Catholic Church, whose missionaries include thousands of nurses specially qualified as nurses and hospital administrators.

Figures of recent years show that Catholic missionaries maintain 3,743 hospitals and dispensaries, employing 311 doctors, assisted by thousands of nurses who are registered nurses and other thousands of lay nurses.

Because Catholic canon law forbids a priest to practice medicine except under rare circumstances, most of the Catholic mission hospitals are staffed by lay doctors.

ONE OF THE leading American organizations in the Catholic medical mission apostolate is the Catholic Medical Mission Board, Inc., in New York, which every year sends tons of medical supplies to foreign mission centers. The board, which also serves as a clearing house of information on medical subjects for missionaries, is headed by the Rev. Edward F. Garcesche, S.J., who is assisted by nurses belonging to the Daughters of Mercy, Health of the Sick, an order which he founded 14 years ago.

The sisterhood is one of several engaged exclusively, or almost exclusively, in medical mission work. Others are the Medical Missionaries of Mary (Ireland), the Medical Mission Sisters (India), the Maryknoll Sisters (United States), the Missionary Canonesses of St. Augustine (Belgium), the Missionary Sisters of St. Francis Xavier (United States), and the Society of Catholic Medical Missionaries, founded at Washington, D. C., in 1925 by Sister Anna Dengel, M.D.

Paralleling the organization of new medical mission communities in recent decades, with the

Father of Priest Dies Suddenly Funeral of Retired English Priest Conducted at Groton

Funeral services for Charles S. Langworthy, 71, father of the Rev. Charles C. Langworthy, assistant chaplain at Cornell University, will be held at 9:30 a.m. Friday, July 28, in the home at 84 Roseland St., and at 10 o'clock in Our Lady of Good Counsel Church.

Mr. Langworthy, a trustee of the parish since its organization almost 20 years ago and a past president of the Men's Club who had been traffic manager at General Railway Signal Corporation since 1930, died unexpectedly at home Tuesday, July 26, 1940.

A native of Rochester, he attended School 30 Rochester High School and LaSalle University in 1910 as a player on the old Monarch team; he was one of the outstanding tenpinp baseball stars in the city.

Besides his priest son Mr. Langworthy is survived by his wife, Mrs. Katherine L. Cassidy Langworthy; another son Robert W. Langworthy; three brothers, Thomas, Fred and Henry Langworthy; and two grandchildren.

Father Hawkins' ministry in many places was a reflection of the universality of the Church; the Rev. Donald M. Cleary, Cornell University chaplain, pointed out in the eulogy sermon. Father Hawkins had said, like His Divine Master he gave about doing good.

The Funeral Mass was offered by the Rev. William E. Hayes, pastor of St. Anthony's Church, of which St. Patrick's is a mission parish. The Rev. Francis C. Waterhouse of Moravia, was canon and the Rev. Joseph T. Maloney of King Ferry, was sub-deacon. Master of ceremonies was the Rev. William Byrne of Ithaca.

A PRIESTLY choir composed of the Reverend Father Charles Langworthy, John S. Maloney, Paul J. Lynch, John P. Wray, Irwin Sullivan and John T. Walsh sang the Mass.

Among those present in the sanctuary were the Rt. Rev. Msgr. John E. Cowley, the Rev. John B. Crowley and the Rev. William Davis, all of Auburn, and the Reverend Joseph B. Delahunt, Leonard M. Barry and David Hartnett of Cortland.

Surviving Father Hawkins are two brothers, Edgar Hawkins of McLean, and the Rev. Albert Hawkins of Budleigh Salterton, Devonshire, England. Interment was in the family plot in St. Patrick's Cemetery, where the final blessing was given by Father Hayes and other priests.

Almost daily he takes his 83-year-old wife; now semi-invalided, on short auto trips in the city and vicinity.

Parents Defend Parish Schools

Munich —(NC)— One-third of the parents of the city of Nuremberg have expressed their preference for parochial schools following an attempt of the socialist-controlled municipal government to rule out such schools in defiance of Bavaria's constitution.

The ratio in preference of parochial schools came out in the course of the enrollment for the first grade just completed there. It showed that 683 children were enrolled in Catholic schools, 742 in Protestant schools and 2,831 in public schools. When parents preferring parochial schools protested against the socialist administration's attempt to bar such schools entirely, the Bavarian Supreme Court upheld the constitution.

Here in Munich 80 per cent of the parents expressed themselves in favor of parochial schools.

Youth Saves Holy Eucharist

Ste. Perpetue, L'Islet, Que. (NC)— Jean Pigeon, a youth who was one of the first to reach the scene when flames broke out in the local Catholic church shortly after midnight, risked his life to save the Blessed Sacrament.

Flames were already licking at the tabernacle when young Pigeon, ignoring personal danger, rushed in for the Blessed Sacrament and carried it to a place of safety.

Damaged to the church, built only three years ago, was estimated at more than $25,000.

Difficulties Face Red Zone Catholics

Berlin —(RNS)— The Roman Catholic Church is operating under "great difficulties" in Soviet-occupied Land Mecklenburg area of the Danubius diocese, according to Bishop William Berning.

He told a pilgrimage attended by 10,000 faithful that Catholics in the Russian-controlled region have no use tables and restaurants as churches.

Parents Defend Parish Schools

London —(NC)— The view of the Royal Commission on Population, indorsing tax cuts for parents, was quoted in the House of Commons by Christopher Hollis, leading Catholic Conservative M.P., in an unsuccessful bid to obtain income-tax relief for Catholics and others who send their children to non-state schools.

Mr. Hollis moved an amendment to the Finance Bill under which such parents would receive an income-tax rebate of 75 pounds ($300). These parents, he argued, "pay rates and taxes to maintain 'free schools' and yet are relieving the state of the cost of educating their own offspring." His amendment was defeated 374 to 125.
