ANTI-RED DECREE SAID 'FAR-REACHING'

(Continued from Page 1) they are no longer permitted to serve as sponsors at baptism or confirmation. Some expect such measures to produce an increase in bitterness and anti-clerical sentiments in some circles, but the prevailing opinion is that there will be a general improvement.

ONLY VERY few expect any return to the Church from the group of "hard-core" communists. While the view is widely held that such persons, too, have been made to think the ultimate result is faced to be increased bitterness among them.

The situation will be most difficult in southern Italy, according to some priests from that region, where the poverty, both of priests and people, is so great that even some priests have been tempted to eat a friendly pie toward communism as a possible means of obtaining some help for their flock. In such areas, it is said, the people will have to bear a real cross in judging whether to resume spiritual ministrations to people who may refuse to turn their back on communism.

The Crypt of the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception is now the only finished part of the edifice which is expected to be completed by 1954.

TEN YEARS WERE spent in the Crypt's construction and the cost was $1,500,000. It is adorned with ornamentation from the far corners of the Catholic world, symbolizing, through the medium of marble and tile, the universality of devotions to the Mother of God.

The Crypt is the largest in the world for floor space and for height. It is 458 feet in length, 320 feet wide at the Sacristy and is 28 feet (medium) in height. It is much larger than the

CZECHS DEFY REDS; CROWD CHURCH RITE

Although police did not interfere with the ceremony, train traffic to Trnava was halted and barriers set up on all roads approaching the town so that visitors would be obliged to identify themselves before passing through. This action created a great deal of foreboding among the outsiders who eventually assembled at the cathedral.

The only bishops absent were Archbishop Joseph Bern of Prague and Miroslav Pich of Hradec Kralove, both of whom have charged they are being held in semi-imprisonment at their residences.

Officiating at the consecration rite were Archbishop Joseph Matocha of Olomouc, Bishop Jan Vojtasek of Spilaska Nova Ves, and Greek Catholic Bishop Pavel Gajdos of Presov. Five other bishops, two acting bishops, and a papal administrator, occupied seats in the sanctuary, all in full ceremonial robe. Only 3,000 persons were able to gain admittance to the cathedral but 3,000 others stood in the rain outside listening to the ceremony over a public address system.

SUBSEQUENTLY, A Mass was celebrated in the square outside the cathedral by Msgr. Isidore Holovic, Slovak Apostolic Vicar, who preached a sermon in which he declared that "no one can be a member of the Church if he does not follow the bishops, because their way is Christ's way."

Infiltrating into the crowd outside the cathedral were members of the government-sponsored Catholic Action organization, a group condemned as schismatic and invalid by Archbishop Bern. These individuals distributed leaflets explaining that many Catholics had misunderstood the government-backed organization and did not realize it sought only to advance the Church's welfare by promoting a Church-State agreement.

Several of the Catholics were seen tearing up the leaflets and scattering them on the ground.

Meanwhile, loudspeakers set up by the Catholic Action supporters on neighboring public buildings blared out popular tunes in an effort to drown out the services inside the cathedral.

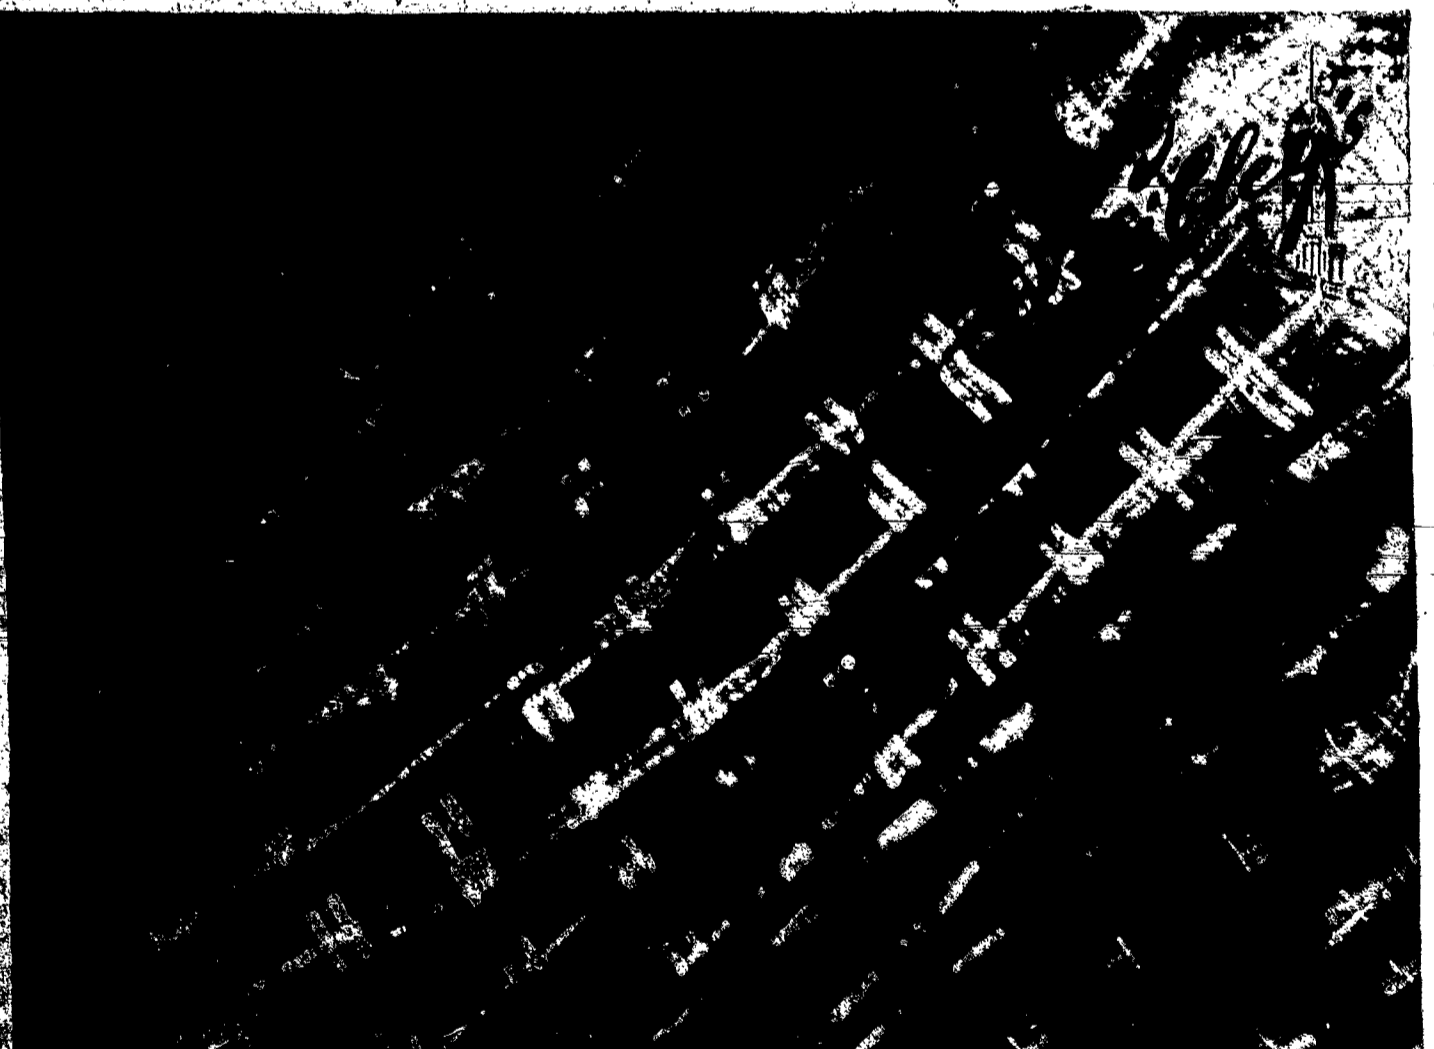

Bishop Lazik and Pobozy were the first prelates to be consecrated since the Communist coup of February, 1948. Their elevation brings to fourteen the number of archbishops, bishops and apostolic administrators belonging to the Czechoslovakian Board of Bishops.

Catholic Students Raise $200,000 In Relief Funds

New York — (RNS) — Students in 174 Catholic colleges and universities raised about $200,000 during the past year for the relief of needy students in war-hit countries. It was announced here by War Relief Services of the National Catholic Welfare Conference. In addition, they collected over $1,000 pounds of goods-in-kind, of an estimated value of $160,000.

The contributions were obtained through projects ranging from cake sales to citywide carnivals under the sponsorship of the Student Relief Campaign of the National Federation of Catholic College Students.

Specific relief allocations, including food, clothing, housing, books and scholarships, were made through officially recognized student organizations in France, Belgium, Switzerland, Austria, Trieste, Germany, Italy, Poland, Spain, China, India, Japan, the Philippine Islands, Korea, and Lebanon.

Purchase and shipping of the materials were handled by War Relief Services. One shipment to China provided a vitamin supply for 3,400 students for six months, and one German university ran its canteen for 300 students for a similar period on the supplementary rations received as its share of the shipment.
