Catholic School Role Stressed At Verein Meet

Catholics must insist that any federal bill granting aid for education contain at least a recognition that non-public schools may be maintained as a matter of right and that they are a part of the American system of education.

This was declared by Joseph H. Gervais, attorney, speaking at the meeting of Rochester Branch, Catholic Central Verein of America, in Holy Redeemer Hall, Sunday afternoon.

The members gathered to discuss Federal Aid to Education and to review especially the national organization's declaration on the subject.

GERVAIS DECLARED that the insistence is necessary for the reason that a large number of people of the United States consider the public school as the only truly American educational institution and look upon the maintenance of non-public schools as a privilege accorded the groups who maintain such schools.

Leo Sachm, reporting on activities of the Kolping Society said that over 2,400 pounds of clothing, food and medicine had been packed and sent to Kolping members in Germany.

Other delegates reporting on activities of their societies were Edward Mick, William Roeger and Stephen Kaufman.

The report of the Nominating Committee was submitted by William Williamson, chairman.

It was decided to hold the Annual Meeting at Holy Family Hall on Feb. 12, and to invite to the meeting the members of Rochester Branch, National Catholic Women's Union.

August M. Maier, president, presided.

Massachusetts Bus Issue Hearing Start In Boston

Boston (INS) Hearings on three bills designed to insure the bus transportation rights of parochial school children under existing state law were opened here by the Legislative Committee.

Passage of any of the measures would nullify a proposed referendum in which Massachusetts voters would be asked to bar parochial school pupils from riding on school buses operated with public funds.

Democratic and Republican leaders at the hearing indicated prompt approval of one of the bills. Republican State Committee Chairman Mason Sears spoke in behalf of the Sears-Rugg bill, which he said was based on a U. S. Supreme Court decision in a New Jersey case.

The high court opinion in this case was said to permit tax paid transportation for private and parochial school children under the general welfare clause of the Constitution.

Proponents said its adoption would remove the religious issue from the school bus transportation case and obviate the presentation of the referendum petition to the voters.

Opposition to the proposal was voiced by the Rev. Isaac Higginbotham, president of the Massachusetts Council of Churches and general secretary of the Massachusetts Baptist Convention.

He said he had signed the referendum petition in an effort "to take religion out of politics."

He termed the attitude of the Republican State Committee in sponsoring the proposed legislation as a means of circumventing the initiative petition "cowardly and despicable."

LeMoyne Leaders Laud 60 Students In Auburn Club

Auburn — Auburn Chapter, LeMoyne College Club, held its second annual winter meeting and dinner Jan. 26, at Springside Inn. The Very Rev. William J. Schlaerth, S.J., president of the college attended.

Also present were the Rev. Andrew Brady, student counselor and Theodore Meyers, professor in the language department and recently appointed moderator for the Auburn Club.

The Auburn club, first formed at LeMoyne, Syracuse, is one of the largest groups at the college. Father Schlaerth in the course of his remarks complimented the Auburn club "The prime job for you 60 Auburn students at LeMoyne is to further LeMoyne in this area. You have given great leadership at your school and that leadership has had its effect," he said.

Father Brady and Professor Meyer also lauded the Auburn club for taking such an outstanding part in the scholastic and social life at the college and both discussed at some length the future plans for enlarging the college facilities.

The dinner was attended by upwards of 60 students and guests. Acting as toastmaster was Allen Miskell president of the Auburn LeMoyne Club. In addition to the three college leaders and Club President Miskell others at the speakers table included William Spinelli, vice president; Joseph Birardi, secretary and Donald Nolan, treasurer. John Costello who held the president's gavel during the first year of the club was called on for a few.
