'City Of Kings' Cast Chosen, Ticket Distribution Opens

With a cast of 22 players, including several widely known thespians of community fame, rehearsals for the play "City of Kings," were under way this week under direction of Willord H. Scott.

Twelve performances of the prize-winning drama are scheduled for Mercy Auditorium, Blossom Road, during Passion Week under sponsorship of the Diocesan Holy Name Union.

Daniel E. Macken, Diocesan Union president, announced that Frank Lange, president St. Andrew's Church Holy Name Society, will be general chairman of tickets.

DISTRIBUTION OF tickets, priced at $1.20 for general admission and $1.80 for reserved seats, began Tuesday at a meeting of parish Holy Name Society representatives. Any parish not having tickets may obtain them through the Holy Name Office, 35 Scio St., HAmilton 5430.

Among those taking leading roles in the production are Raymond P. Weis, Edward W. Murphy, John N. Dash and Gerald Kelly, all widely known in theater circles.

Weis has been connected with footlights for nearly 30 years, having served as director and actor with the Community Players, Footlight Club, Holy Family Theater Guild, Nazareth College and others. Murphy has had considerable experience with the Community Players, Blackfriars and the Footlight Club, as well as in minstrels.

Dash acted in the Blackfriar production of "The First Legion," and has appeared on the New York State Police Show over Station WHAM. Kelly is a member of the faculty of Nazareth College.

MEMBERS OF St. Andrew's Holy Name Society announced this week that they are planning a "theater party" similar to the one they held last Spring for the play "Lady of Fatima." George Butts Jr. heads the committee. The parish party will be held Sunday night, Apr. 2.

Eight evening performances of the play authored by the Rev. Urban Nagle, O.P., founder of the Blackfriar Theater Guild, are scheduled from Saturday, Mar. 25, through Apr. 2. There will be no show on Monday, Mar. 27.

Four matinees for school children will be held on the two weekends — Saturday and Sunday afternoons, Mar. 25-26 and Apr. 1-2. Tickets, priced at 50 cents, will be made available through the schools.

RESERVED SEATS for evening performances — 350 in the center section orchestra — may be obtained through the Holy Name office. Those desiring reservations are urged to call the office as soon as possible. General admission tickets are good for any evening performance on a first come first served basis.

"City of Kings" tells the story of Blessed Martin de Porres, Negro Dominican Brother of the 16th century who was known as the Apostle to the Poor. The play is reputed to be the best yet written by Father Nagle, recognized as the leading Catholic playwright of our times.

Last year "Lady of Fatima" showed to approximately 10,000 persons. "City of Kings" is expected to attract many more persons who witnessed or heard of the excellent presentation of "Lady of Fatima."

Miss McNamara's Performance Hailed At Aquinas

A small but appreciative audience braved the blizzard Sunday night to hear Madeline McNamara present her "Distinctive Dramalogues" at Aquinas Institute under the auspices of the Christian Culture Series.

Miss McNamara, who was introduced by Mrs. James M. Mangan, president of the Rochester Community Players, gave seven dramatic monologues. In the first, "Dress Rehearsal," she played the part of a scatter-brained society matron.

IN "MAVOURNEEN," she was an aged Irish apple woman, in "William Goes to Camp," a doting mother. After an intermission, she presented four longer sketches "Displaced Persons," in which she was an ex-Nazi mother, "Ranch Owner's Wife"; "Lady with a Lamp," in which she was Florence Nightingale, and "I've Got My Principles," in which she was a Broadway chorus-girl.

While the comic sketches, and especially "William Goes To Camp," naturally drew the most spontaneous applause, Miss McNamara proved herself truly versatile in recreating a variety of characters. With no make-up and only the hit of a special costume, she was able, through change of voice, facial expression, and gesture, to move easily and convincingly from Irish crone to German wife, Western yankee and Victorian Lady.

She projected the emotion of the part realistically, and held the audience's attention throughout. The program was a rewarding experience.

At the close of the performance the Rev. Alphonse Malone, C.S.B. director of the Aquinas Christian Culture Series, announced that the next presentation of the Series would be His Imperial Highness, Archduke Otto of Austria who will lecture on the subject "Today's Christian Europe," on Sunday, Mar. 26 at 3.
