There's Something About the Irish

By MARY SULLIVAN

On the eighth day after the good Lord had created the universe He was still restless about Himself...

of warmth, sunshine and flowers. In a world where the prominent colors seem to be black and blue...

Revive That Irish Faith

By MARY LENNON SNYDER

President, Diocesan Council of Catholic Women

In the midst of the parades and the dancing the dinners and the toasting the banquets...

Mrs. Snyder

The prayers are particularly beautiful and the repetition in English, besides asking Almighty God to bless the mother and her new baby...

Another Irish tradition was the sacredness of the wedding ring. The Irish women of a generation ago very seldom if ever removed the plain gold band that was blessed and put on her finger on her wedding day...

When we read in the society columns of Catholic women and girls entertaining at prenatal parties a divorcee about to remarry...

Today when for so many the recurrence of the feast of St. Patrick is only an excuse for a riotous evening...

The ceremony consists of a special blessing which recalls the visit of the Holy Family at the Temple of Jerusalem for

Child Rushes In Where Angels Fear To Tread

By MARY TINLEY DALY

Even before the phone call I had heard over the telephone...

Mary Dalry

When I asked him why he had these things, he said he wondered and wondered what happened to people after they died...

But what of the other things that she had said had happened to her?

Child rushes in where angels fear to tread. When I asked him why he had these things, he said he wondered and wondered what happened to people after they died...

Rochester Girl Professed In Maryknoll Rite

By MARY LENNON SNYDER

Sister Helen Mary the former Miss Helen Baumann of Rochester participated in the ceremony at which 49 postulants received the Maryknoll habit and took their vows at the Motherhouse at Maryknoll, Mich.

At the same time 27 novices pronounced their vows and are now eligible for assignment to the mission field.

The Rev. John B. Sheerin, C.P., editor of the Catholic World, spoke at the ceremony, and the Very Rev. Thomas S. Walsh, A. C. M. S., superior of the Maryknoll Fathers, officiated.
