African Negro Bishop Says Native Clergy St. Boniface Footlight Club Urgently Needed for Uganda Conversion Rehearses In Musical Comedy

Africa's most crucial need today is an enlarged Negro Catholic clergy "to keep the Faith alive and spread it to the millions of Africans who have never heard of Christ," a short, friendly Negro Bishop told Rochesterians this week.

Bishop Joseph Kiwanuka, of Masaka, Uganda, the first native priest raised to the African hierarchy since 1700, is visiting the United States at the express command of Pope Pius XII to explain the mission work on the Dark Continent and to beg gifts and scholarships for his diocesan seminary.

"MY DIOCESE needs a seminary for 200 students," he said. "To accommodate the vocations at hand and to serve our growing parishes. At present we cannot train more than 15 students at a time."

Discussing his diocese of 139,000 people in 14 parishes served by 50 Negro priests and 270 Negro teaching Brothers and Sisters, the smiling Bishop admitted that government control of education by officers of the British Protectorate in Uganda gave him many troubles. "Because government pays half of our Catholic school maintenance, they claim full authority over our syllabus, the hiring of our teachers, the schedule of the school day and the hours for religious instruction."

BORN IN UGANDA in 1909 of a family whose forebears were among the 20 famous Martyrs of Uganda, the Bishop was educated by the French White Fathers, and ordained in 1927. Just 10 years later, after prize-winning studies in Rome, he was consecrated Bishop by Pope Pius XII with a group of 11 other mission bishops in the first such ceremony the Pontiff performed after his election.

Describing the African fervor that has brought such growth to his diocese in 10 years, the Bishop said that his priests must hear confessions all through Friday and Saturday to accommodate the weekly crowds of penitents.

ONE WOMAN recently sought out the Bishop to hear her confession because she said she was "tired of waiting in line for the other priests." Questioned about her impatience she explained that she had made four 20-mile roundtrips from her home to church to make her confession but could not be heard because the lines were too long.

Bishop Kiwanuka since arrival in October has visited nearly 20 dioceses of the East and Mid-west. Besides generous donations for his preparatory seminary he has received many college scholarships here for his African students.

A native of Uganda, British East Africa, Bishop Joseph Kiwanuka, W.P., Vicar Apostolic of Masaka, Uganda paid a visit to His Excellency Bishop Kearney Tuesday. Above Bishop Kiwanuka is shown looking at the Courier Journal in the diocesan newspaper office while the Rev. Richard Torney, associate editor points out various features.
