Blessed Sacrament High School,

Cornwells Heights, Pennsylvania, is accredited by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and is a school maintained for young girls who desire to enter the Novitiate of the Sisters of the Blessed Sacrament for Indians and Colored People but have not completed their secondary education, and others who wish to spend their four years of secondary school life in an accredited school with a serene, religious and peaceful atmosphere, preparing for entrance into religious life.

The return home for the Christmas and Easter holidays, and the long summer vacation, insure the requisite contact with home and outside life necessary for the development of the normal young girl. The life at Blessed Sacrament High School is that usual in a high-class Catholic boarding school for secondary education. The diocesan examinations are taken at the end of each semester and a diploma issued at the end of four years.

Several scholarships are offered annually to graduates of Catholic schools who fulfill all requirements and have the recommendation of their pastor.
