Text Of Eulogy For Rev. J. B. Keenan

Following is the text of the sermons delivered by the Rt. Rev. Mr. John St. Duffy, pastor of St. Augustine's Church, Rochester, at the funeral Mass for the Rev. James B. Keenan...

I have glorified thee on earth; I have finished the work thou gavest me to do. And now glorify thou me, O Father...

The last days of Our Lord's mortal life and the first days of His glorified life were indeed most eventful. The sermons course of the apostles was drawing to a close...

On the first night after the Resurrection, Jesus gave to His apostles, and their successors, the divine power of forgiving sin...

THIS, IN BRIEF, was the divine vocation of the apostles. This, in brief, is the divine vocation of the priest. This, in brief, was the glorious work to which Father James Keenan was called fifty-two years ago.

Healed to the sublime dignity of the priesthood by the Most Reverend Bernard J. McQuaid, the first bishop of Rochester, Father Keenan embraced the work of his priesthood with his whole heart...

Father Keenan was endowed by Almighty God with unusual gifts—both natural and supernatural. He possessed a rare intellect...

Mass marked the beginning of his priestly day. It was only the beginning. In the moment that he finished his thanksgiving...

Never was a priest more ready and eager to teach and preach and explain the word of God and the truths of salvation. On a moment's notice he was prepared to step into the pulpit...

Father Keenan lived by faith. It was deep and firm. It permeated every thought and word and act of his priestly life.

The great central act of his life, the act that was the inspiration and source of all his spiritual vitality and zeal and charity was the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass.

The Holy Sacrifice was the very soul of his life. His faith put aside time and space, and when he stood at the altar he stood at the foot of the cross...

Nor did repetition ever cause him to grow weary. After fifty years he approached the altar with the reverence and humility, with the faith and love of a Curate of Ars or a St. Alphonsus Ligouri.

in the incarnation and redemption, and still plays in the sanctification of souls. He saw clearly with faith that she is the Mediatix of all graces.

The Blessed Mother taught him to pray, and his prayers were answered with many graces, not the least of which was his spirit of detachment.

Like Our Divine Lord, he taught wherever he found an audience, whether the audience was composed of one soul or five hundred.

NOR WERE lay people the only recipients of his instruction and wisdom. He seemed to take particular delight in speaking to his fellow-priests on the work of the sacred ministry in order that their labors might be more effective and fruitful.

His knowledge of the principles of theology and his grasp of the spiritual life were so firm that he spoke with the enthusiasm of an apostle and with the eloquence of a St. Bernard.

After Father Keenan's love of the Blessed Sacrament, his priesthood was distinguished by a most tender and ardent devotion to the Mother of God.

BEING A spiritual man, he understood, too, the intimate part that the Blessed Virgin played
