

Dr. Adler Lecture Set In Thomas More Series

Dr. Mortimer J. Adler, professor of the Philosophy of Law at the University of Chicago, will be the eighth and final speaker in the Thomas More Lecture Forum series on Tuesday evening, April 17 in Hotel Sheraton Ballroom.

Widely known in this area, Dr. Adler will discuss "What Man Has Made of Man." He will be introduced by Louis A. Lange, forum chairman at 8:15 p.m.

ANTICIPATING wide interest in Dr. Adler's lecture, the Very Rev. Magr. John S. Randall, Forum Executive Director, said that the noted educator will analyze the relationship between the moral and intellectual virtues.

The speaker has long been identified with the Great Books, a 54-volume set of 443 books, a vast project jointly conceived by him and the then Chicago University President Robert Hutchins.

Since 1943, Dr. Adler has made it his special business to compile an index of ideas contained in the Great Books. Called the Synopticon (a named coined by Dr. Adler from the Greek words for synthesis and topics), this two-volume, 2,500-page concordance of the Great Ideas contained in the Great Books may well be the first Reader of 50 centuries of Western thought.

A DYNAMO of energy, Dr. Mortimer Adler has long been in the thick of controversies in the philosophical and educational worlds. Except for his now famous "How to Read a Book," Dr. Adler's research and writing have been mainly in the fields of psychology and philosophy. Philosophy, he defines as "the emancipation of the intellect and the cultivation of the spirit."

DR. MORTIMER ADLER

Dr. Adler's other books include: "Dialectic," "Diagrammatics," (written in collaboration with Maude Phelps Hutchins) "What Man Has Made of Man," "Art and Prudence" and "St. Thomas and the Gentiles."

Tickets for the lecture may be obtained at the door, the night of the lecture, or prior to that at 35 So. Street. Admission is $1.50 per person.

Thomas More Lecture Forum was sponsored by the Catholic Courier-Journal.

General MacArthur Lauds Bp. Byrne, Held In Korea

His personal sense of loss in the arrest and deportation by the Korean Reds of Bishop Patrick J. Byrne, Apostolic Delegate to Korea, was expressed by Gen. Douglas MacArthur in Tokyo on April 6.

Bishop Byrne, a native of Washington, spent part of his boyhood in Auburn and has relatives in that city.

The General in an interview with Bishop Raymond A. Lane, superior general of the Maryknoll Fathers to which community Bishop Byrne belongs, was quoted in a NCWC News Service dispatch from Tokyo.

"I FEEL VERY close to Bishop Byrne," General MacArthur declared. "In the early days of the Japanese occupation when everything was in confusion, Bishop Byrne was of great help to us. He was resourceful and courageous. He was looked up to by everybody."

General MacArthur told Bishop Lane that Bishop Byrne was as great a statesman as he was a churchman.

"When Bishop Byrne went to Korea, it was a distinct loss to Japan. He carried to Korea the same able administration he provided here," the General said. "He succeeded so well in his relations with President (Syngman) Rhee and Ambassador (John J.) Muccio (United States envoy to Korea), that I wrote a personal letter of commendation to the Holy Father in appreciation of his work."

General MacArthur also told Bishop Lane how popular Bishop Byrne was with the Korean people.

"On the occasion of the inauguration of the new Korean government," General MacArthur related, "in the presence of 20,000 people, Bishop Byrne received the greatest ovation of all the speakers."
