WHAT'S DOING AT THE DALYS' Cure Dectors Can't Provide

BY MARY TIPILEY BALLY

Stopping by the Christ Child Farm for Convalencent Children, one Sunday, we noticed a little girl all dressed up in a starched red dress, standing on tiptoe and anxiously scanning every arriving car.

Ours was the last on the parking lot and as we shut the car door, the little girl turned away and began to cry softly, dabbing at the tears with the sleeve of her blue sweater. "It's not her again," she sobbed under her breath.

Turning her back to us she began kicking at the grass with the toes of her shoe - those carefully shined shoes. She was about Ginny's age and Ginny went over to her.

"Is that dog yours?" Ginny asked with the direct approach of childhood, pointing to a dog and gifts. romping on the wide lawn.

"Yup," the child answered. "And he loves me an awful, nwful lot. I mean, he lives here and I'm just here till I get well -but he sure loves me. And so does my Mommie."

"Mine does too," Ginny said. 'What's your name? Mine's Ginny."
