Padua High Speaker Lauds Sports Aid To Democracy

Watkins Glen — Sports as a means of fostering democracy were advocated by Sports Editor Jim Morse of the Elmira Advertiser at the annual Padua High School Sportsmanship-Scholarship banquet.

SPORTS EDITOR Morse in his address reminded his listeners that "Jews, Protestants and Catholics alike become teammates and learn to respect the beliefs of their fellowmen through the medium of sports more than in anything else."

J. Malina J. Pileh

"You can be rich or poor, sports have no favorites," the speaker declared. "Sports is democracy in action more so than in any other profession or avocation. It is a great teacher, teaching respect, humility, democracy and better living."

Scholarship awards were presented to Joseph Malina of Brooklyn, of the Padua High sophomore class who attained an average of 88 plus and to John Pileh, also of Brooklyn who in the Freshman Class had an average of 87.

Among the 130 guests, were many parents of the boys attending Padua Prep. Art Richards, better known as "Mr. Watkins Glen," ably conducted the affairs of the evening as the toastmaster.

Rev. Claude Zabinaki, Rector, presented awards to John Malina, Sophomore, and John Pileh for the highest scholastic achievements. Both students are from Brooklyn, N. Y.

Elmira Catholic Highlights

By ANN MOFFATT

Senior Day at Elmira Catholic High School has come and gone at last! Tuesday, June 12, the Seniors merrily up the aisle of Dunn Memorial to the solemn strains of the processional.

The salutatorian, Jackie Dowling, and the valedictorian, Ann Moffatt, gave their speeches.

Mae Curran, the editor of this year's Echosonian, also delivered a speech, after which the year-books were distributed. Guest speaker for this ceremony was Gordon M. Ridenour.

All things must come to an end as must this year. Exams are beginning, arrangements for graduation (June 24) are made, and the year is coming to a close. It is with this column-so "Good-bye from Catholic High Hill next year!"

SENIOR SPOTLIGHT

(Mary Sedor)

Who's our talented artist? What girl is always giggling with Regina? You guessed it—it's our one and only Mary Sedor. "Dixie" was one of the artists for the Echosonian, and we marvel at her drawing ability. She served as an usher for the Senior play and is a member of the Sodality.

To get down to the "favorites" department, she loves strawberry ice-cream and has a weak spot for "There's No Tomorrow." She loves to dance, especially at St. Patrick's.

After graduation, she will attend West Seneca's Business School to study secretarial work. Mary is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen J. Sedor at 1201 Magge Street.
