

Congress Report On Einstein

Refugee Who Applauded Paul Blanshard Has Long Record Of Pro-Red Sympathy

The world-famous physicist and scientist, Albert Einstein, sat in the front row at the annual Princeton University Institute of Theology last week and listened to Paul Blanshard, author of the anti-Catholic book, "American Freedom and Catholic Power," deliver one of his professional tirades against the Catholic Church.

When Blanshard finished, the refugee professor and member of the national advisory board of United World Federalists arose and said: "I wish to express my gratitude to a man who is fighting the abuses of a powerful organization. We are grateful to him for his efforts."

The "powerful organization" is of course, the Catholic Church.

PROFESSOR EINSTEIN'S antagonism toward the Catholic Church is not surprising to those who have followed his career since this country gave him refuge. His name is nationally known among other things, for his identification with pro-Soviet and pro-Communist organizations, as well as for his support of World Government, which would make the United States but a minor party to a global political and military organization.

More than a year ago, the House Committee on Un-American Activities compiled a list of the innumerable left-wing affiliations of Professor Einstein. Following is the report of the House Committee, as printed in the Congressional Record and reprinted in THE TABLET of Feb. 25, 1950:

A CHECK OF the public files, records and publications of the Committee (on Un-American Activities) has revealed the following information concerning the individual (Einstein) listed above:

According to a letterhead, dated Oct. 27, 1942, Prof. Albert Einstein was one of the patrons of the Congress of American-Soviet Friendship. He was a sponsor of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, as shown on Call to the Congress of American-Soviet Friendship, Nov. 6-8, 1943 (p. 4); and a memorandum issued by the Council on March 12, 1946. He signed an open letter to the American people sponsored by the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, as shown in the New York "Times" of May 18, 1943, page 17C.

The Congress of American-Soviet Friendship was cited as a Communist-front organization in Report No. 1311 of the Special Committee on Un-American Activities, dated March 29, 1944; the same report shows that "in recent months, the Communist Party's principal front for all things Russian has been known as the National Council for American-Soviet Friendship."

Attorney General Clark cited the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship as a subversive and Communist in lists furnished the Loyalty Review Board, which were released to the press by the United States Civil Service Commission, Dec. 4, 1947, and Sept. 27, 1948.

The "Daily Worker" of Feb. 26, 1942, page 4, named Albert Einstein as one of the sponsors of the American Committee for Protection of Foreign Born. The American Committee for Protection of Foreign Born was cited as "one of the oldest auxiliaries of the Communist Party in the United States" in Report No. 1311 of the Special Committee on Un-American Activities, dated March 29, 1944. The organization had previously been cited in Report No. 2277 of the committee, dated July 25, 1942.

The American Committee for Protection of Foreign Born was cited as subversive and Communist in lists furnished the Loyalty Review Board, which were released to the press by the United States Civil Service Commission, June 1, 1948, and Sept. 21, 1948.

ALBERT EINSTEIN was an endorser of the North American Committee to Aid Spanish Democracy, as shown in the "Daily Worker" of April 16, 1937, page 2; he was named as a sponsor of the North American Committee to Aid Spanish Democracy, Medical Bureau, in "New Masses" of May 18, 1937, page 25. In Reports of the Special Committee on Un-American Activities, dated Jan. 3, 1940, and March 29, 1944, the North American Committee to Aid Spanish Democracy was cited as a Communist-front organization.

In a list furnished the Loyalty Review Board by Attorney General Clark, which was released to the press by the United States Civil Service Commission, April 25, 1949, the organization was cited as Communist.

Albert Einstein was a national sponsor of the Spanish Refugee Appeal of the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee, according to letterheads of that group dated Feb. 26, 1946, and Feb. 3, 1948; he signed a petition in defense of the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee, as shown in the "Daily Worker" of April 28, 1948, page 4; and was co-chairman of the national reception committee for Madame Irene Joliot-Curie, whose speaking tour was sponsored by the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee (invitation to dinner, New York City, March 31, 1948).

The Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee was cited as subversive and Communist by Attorney General Clark in lists furnished the Loyalty Review Board, which were released to the press by the United States Civil Service Commission, Dec. 4, 1947, and Sept. 21, 1948; it was cited as a Communist-front organization in Report 1311 of the Special Committee on Un-American Activities, dated March 29, 1944.

Attorney General Clark cited the American Council for a Democratic Greece as a subversive and Communist organization formerly known as the Greek-American Council in lists furnished the Loyalty Review Board, which were released to the press by the United States Civil Service Commission, June 1, 1948, and Sept. 21, 1948. Albert Einstein sponsored a petition of the American Council for a Democratic Greece, as shown in the "Daily Worker" of Aug. 23, 1948, page 2. He signed a statement of the council condemning the Greek Government, according to the "Daily Worker" of Sept. 1, 1948, page 7.

Dr. Einstein was a sponsor of the Spanish Refugee Relief Campaign, as shown on a letterhead of that group, dated at New Haven, Conn., Nov. 16, 1939, and a pamphlet entitled "Children in Concentration Camps." The Special Committee on Un-American Activities cited the Spanish Refugee Relief Campaign as a Communist-front organization in Report 1476 of Jan. 3, 1940.

Albert Einstein contributed a manuscript for Spanish aid to the League of American Writers, according to the "Daily Worker" of Feb. 18, 1939, page 7.

BOTH ATTORNEY General Francis Biddle and Attorney General Tom Clark have cited the League of American Writers as a Communist front organization in Congressional Records. Sept. 24, 1942, pages 7685 and 7686; letters to Loyalty Review Board, released June 1, 1948, and Sept. 21, 1948. The organization was cited as a Communist-front in Reports of the Special Committee on Un-American Activities, dated Jan. 3, 1940; June 25, 1942; and March 29, 1944.

Albert Einstein signed a letter pledging support to China, which was issued by the American Friends of the Chinese People, as shown in the "Daily Worker" of July 16, 1940, page 4. He was an endorser of the Committee for Peace Through World Cooperation, according to the "Daily Worker" of April 22, 1938, page 4. Both American Friends of the Chinese People and the Committee for Peace Through World Cooperation were cited as Communist-front organizations in Report 1311 of the Special Committee on Un-American Activities, dated March 29, 1944.

Albert Einstein was a sponsor of the Freedom Crusade of the Civil Rights Congress, according to the "Daily Worker," issues of Dec. 15, 1948, pages 2, and Dec. 31, 1948, page 3.

In Report 1115 of the Committee on Un-American Activities, entitled "Civil Rights Congress as a Communist Front Organization," dated Sept. 2, 1947, the Einstein was also "true to form" in 1940, Scanlan writes, "when he asked people to give up belief in a personal God. In this instance we showed how he followed Hitler's ideology and stated it was strange that organizations devoted to religion, tolerance and unity did not take to task this man for his criticism of all God-fearing, believing people."

"Not once to our knowledge," states the Brooklyn editor, "has Einstein ever said a word of criticism of the Soviet persecutors of the millions of people enslaved behind the Iron Curtain, seemingly because he holds the victims—as we said ten years ago—as to be second-class citizens and not entitled to the freedom he enjoys."

In commenting Blanshard's Princeton attack on the Church, Einstein spoke of "the abuses of a powerful organization." "But surely," counters Editor Scanlan, "he did not list as an abuse the rescue of thousands and thousands of persecuted Jews by the same 'powerful organization,' a rescue work for which representative God-fearing Jews have commended the head of that same Church."

Koreans. Those who spoke English were willing to talk with the U. N. correspondents and American soldiers, but refused to answer critical questions. "I won't answer any more. Your questions are beyond the truth," one Chinese told Mr. van Sprang.

and Sept. 21, 1948.

ALBERT EINSTEIN has been a contributor to the publication "Soviet Russia Today" since June, 1942 (p. 6); he was a sponsor of the "Soviet Russia Today" dinner celebrating the 25th anniversary of the Red Army ("Soviet Russia Today," February, 1943, p. 34). "Soviet Russia Today" was cited as a Communist-front in reports of the Special Committee on Un-American Activities, dated June 25, 1942, and March 29, 1944.

Albert Einstein is named as a member at large of the National Council of the Arts, Sciences and Professions on an undated letterhead of the organization (received January, 1949). He was a sponsor of the Scientific and Cultural Conference for World Peace held in New York City, March 25-27, 1949, under auspices of the National Council of the Arts, Sciences and Professions according to the conference program, page 14.

Both the Scientific and Cultural Conference for World Peace and the National Council of the Arts, Sciences and Professions were cited as Communist front organizations in the Report of the Committee on Un-American Activities, dated April 19, 1949, which is entitled "Review of the Scientific and Cultural Conference for World Peace Arranged by the National Council of the Arts, Sciences and Professions."
