500 St. Aloysius Alumni Honor Pastor on Jubilee

Auburn — More than 500 alumni of Auburn's St. Aloysius School gathered on Wednesday evening, July 18, to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of their parish. Every cooperation of, as he expressed it, "the mothers and fathers who bore you, and who educated you."

FATHER CROWLEY recalled that, on the St. Aloysius School diploma, there is the motto "There is no true education without religion." This motto, he pointed out, is the mind of the Catholic Church, and he told his listeners that their parents, in Scripture account, he observed, "the laborers are few." He noted that the "few laborers" whom he compared to the priests and nuns of St. Aloysius, could have accomplished nothing without the self-sacrifice and the

Mr. Shamon, as toastmaster, likened the spirit of the alumni of St. Aloysius to that of the far famed spirit of Notre Dame University, his alma mater.

Describing the majestic statue of Our Lady enthroned high on the famous dome, the toastmaster explained that the Spirit of Notre Dame comes simply "from above." So too, he noted, does the spirit of St. Aloysius Alumni come "from above"—from the Church, the sanctuary and the Blessed Sacrament that literally are above the school.

PAYING LAUDATORY tribute to the Rev. John B. Crowley, pastor for 26 years of St. Aloysius, Mr. Shamon noted that the pastor also marks the fortieth anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood, this year.

When introduced as principal speaker of the evening, Father Crowley expressed his justifiable pride in the Alumni of St. Aloysius, which, he declared was without equal in the diocese, the state, and the nation.

He described the alumni spirit as "spontaneous and from the heart." He likened his hearers to "a great harvest," and, as in the the parochial educational program as a "wonderful job." Father Crowley also said tribute to his distinguished predecessor the Rev. John J. McGrath, the founder of the parish.

It is the Father McGrath is looking down from Heaven on you tonight, and there is no one who is prouder of you than he is tonight.

The past spoke "eternity" of the nuns gone to their eternal reward and mentioned especially the late Sister M. Alrita in closing he said. "We salute Sister Alrita and all the nuns who taught you Father McGrath, the priests and your parents."

LORETTA A. DONAHUE, general chairman presided over presentation of gifts and the awarding of prizes (on behalf of the alumni). Miss Donahue presented Father Crowley with a gold watch suitably engraved to mark the occasion of his fortieth anniversary. Father Haffey, assistant at St. Aloysius for the past eleven years, was presented a leather traveling bag. The attendance prize was awarded to Miss Beatrice Levton.

The prize for the largest family went to Mrs. Helen O'Connell Poole who has eight children. Frank Nagle of the class of 1904 was given the award for the oldest alumnus present. The prizes for the family with the largest representation at the banquet went to the Conwa family, the Lynch family, and the Shamon family.

The awards for those coming from the most distant places went to Mrs. Helen Toole (Mrs. Ginz of Detroit, Michigan) and to James Mohan of Portsmouth, West Virginia. The prize for being the only service man present went to James Madden of Sampson Air Base. GUESTS WERE present from Memphis, Tenn., Washington, D.C., Philadelphia, and various cities in Pennsylvania, Detroit, Mich., Portsmouth, W. Va., New York City, Rochester, Syracuse, Buffalo, Binghamton, Geneva, Elmira, Oswego, and many other places too numerous to mention.

Priests in attendance were: Rev. Francis Hester, and Rev. Bernard Newcomb, Rochester; Rev. Raymond Nolan, Geneva; Rev. Albert Shamon, Rochester; and Rev. Edward Shamon, Avon. The Rev. Edward Banks of New York City, a nephew of Mrs. George Wilson of Auburn, was a special guest.

Three poems composed by Miss Lillian Hatch were read by her during the program. The song leader was William Bates, who also sang the only solo of the evening. The selection was "May the Good Lord Bless and Keep You." Frank Newcomb was the accompanist.

Besides the various selections enjoyed during the group singing, the entire gathering opened the evening with "The Star Spangled Banner" and, during the evening they were also led in the beautiful "Hymn to St. Aloysius," composed by Sister M. Estelle, who spent a record 25 years at St. Aloysius. The entire assemblage also sang "Holy God" at the conclusion of the program.

"Dutch" Connors and his orchestra furnished music for dancing later in the evening. Paul Padlick, manager of Deauville and his staff were commended for the dinner and service.
