When poverty or calamity strikes a Chinese family baby girls are the first to be abandoned. Parents will "skimp and skin to save a boy," according to the Chinese tradition.

THE TELE picture of the heroic work of the Franciscan Sisters in Nanking which the Communists seek to distort is best described in this excerpt rom a letter written in 1948

"At present we are nearly 200 in all, counting the children, Sistem and personnel and the house is overcrowded. Of this number $1 are babies from a few days to 11; years and about 50 older girls. With the terrible inflation, strikes, boycott, and black market, the Door Darents cannot provide for their children and we are swamped with requests.

There are 2 er 3 admissions almost daily. For us it is a problem also, as we have practically finished our milk supply and are unable to pay the exorbitant price demanded. In 4 days our milk will be ex-Eleanor Ramos, College of St. Bose, Albany, hausted and then we must trust to Divine Providence.

"One day during our recrea tion we were startled by the ories of the children and a loud ringing of the bell. Some of the orphans had been playing in the compound near the road when a man approached them with a bundle. He asked the girls to watch the baby for him and he would be right back. "How delighted they were to hold the baby in their arms and to coo to it. But the time the leadership of Archbishop passed, the bell rang for class and the man had not returned.
