Contemplative

(The following verses by Sister M. St. Francis of the Sisters of St. Joseph, teacher in St. Patrick's School, Seneca Falls and author of the children's book "The Green Dragon" appear in the August issue of "Integrity").

You have held the invisible fingers that molded the world; You have kept back, like Moses, the wrath of our God, unhurled.

Beauty has always worn a hidden knife. And deepest Love to darkest Pain laid claim. Is God so foreign to our fallen life That His Approach must near. Like Ace or flame?

House-To-House Canvas Set By St. Patrick HNS

Members of St. Patrick's Holy Name Society met last night in the school assembly rooms and completed plans for house to house canvases of the parish with a view of establishing the status of each man as to his affiliation with the Society.

This work will also entail the encouragement of all non-members to enroll in the Society so as to bring the numbers up to the maximum.

A DISCUSSION was held as to the possibility of holding a Communion breakfast on a bi-monthly basis. It was felt that doing this would be a stimulus to the members to attend the meetings and participate more fully in the extensive Catholic action program of the Society.

The Rev. Vincent F. Collins, spiritual director, spoke to the group and urged enthusiastic support of the membership canvass and questionnaire.
