

Bishop Praises 100-Year-Old Parish Pioneers

Union Springs—St. Michael's Church, Union Springs, was crowded to capacity last Sunday morning when His Excellency Bishop Kearney of Rochester, celebrated the Mass of St. Michael in commemoration of the one hundredth anniversary of the parish.

After Mass, the Bishop administered the sacrament of confirmation to a class of children and adults from both Aurora and Union Springs.

The Bishop was assisted by his secretary, the Rev. Dr. John E. Maney, and the Rev. Raymond Nolan, principal of DeSales High School, Geneva. The Rev. Magr. William E. Cowen, the Rev. Irvin Sullivan, and the Rev. Gregory Dugan of Auburn were also in the sanctuary.

THE REV. WILLIAM AYERS, pastor, welcomed Bishop Kearney as the guest of honor at the centennial observance and extended greetings to the many former parishioners who joined with the present members of the congregation to mark the occasion.

Bishop Kearney in his centennial sermon paid tribute to the pioneers of the parish dedicated to St. Michael, the arch-foe of evil. He visualized the sense of happiness that was theirs in the thrill of challenge, the hope of creating a fortress of faith, and the joy of realizing that challenge and that hope, the joy that they had once again, said the Bishop, "created a new Nazareth and a new Bethlehem by this roadside."

His Excellency declared that the story of each pastor down through the past century would indeed be a fascinating one, but he added it would be a narrative that could not be written by an historian. It must be the Bishop observed, be essentially a spiritual thing, between God and His creatures.

A story begun with the baptismal font and supplemented by the wealth of spiritual history linked with the confessional and the communion rail, a story written in the hearts of the Union Springs people for an entire century and further recorded in the tablets of eternity.

SUCH MEMORIES as these spiritual ones, said the Bishop, are the most precious that any one could ever know. He also stressed the importance of the Mass in the lives of the parishioners, as well as the teachings of the Church emanating from the pulpit of the Church, constituting the same message that (Continued on Page 8)

Bishop Kearney Blesses 2 New School Structures

Foes of the Catholic school system did not challenge the patriotism of Catholic youth in time of war and "by the Eternal God," they will not challenge them now.

This declaration came from His Excellency Bishop Kearney following his dedications of the new school of St. Francis of Assisi, Auburn and the new wing including the auditorium of DeSales High School in Geneva. The Bishop declared that Catholics in erecting their own school system created no division of American youth, but, he added, "We are convinced that the welfare of our century depends upon the realization of our dependence upon God."

His Excellency also declared that the parochial school graduates are a more eloquent defense of Catholic patriotism than we can ever hope to offer. The Bishop, "has given far more to America than it will ever ask in return."

THE ADDITION to DeSales High School costing about $142,000 was dedicated by the Bishop Sunday afternoon. The Bishop was escorted to the new structure by a guard of honor of Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus attended by local and visiting clergy.

THE REV. RAYMOND P. NOLAN, principal of DeSales opened the program on the stage of the new gymnasium, Joseph P. Flynn, Rochester architect, designed the adjoining structures. Bishop Kearney congratulated the clergy, teachers, and people
