Store Displays Handmade Dolls

As a feature of their 63rd An niversary Celebration Sheeban's Inc., well-known Elmira Depay! ment Store is showing a window display of handmade, character dolls created by Mrs. Frederick Parkhurst of Bath, N.Y. This unique collection of char actes doils has been exhibited in many places, including the Rochester Museum of Arts and Sciences, and one of the dolls, received honorable mention at the 10th Annual Doll Show in New York in 1948

Mrs. Parkhurst's dolls are said to be the essence of charm and originality She has brought to her task delicate technical ar tistry coupled with wit and imagination. There are portrait dolls with elaborate costumes even to handembroidered alips, almost microscopic jewelry, min iscule beaded alippers, dolls that have stepped out of story books. theatrical personalities attired in the costume of the part that made them famous.
