9-Room Nursery Suite Open In St. James Mercy Hospital

Hornell—St. James Mercy Hospital's new nine-room nursery suite is now in use. The suite, of 20-infant capacity, is constructed and equipped according to New York State Public Health regulations.

It is a part of the newly-re-modeled maternity department which has been moved to the portion of the hospital formerly known as "South Wing." Until recently, maternity patients were housed on the first floor of the original hospital.

In the nursery suite are two large "normal baby" nurseries with eight cubicles in each. Glass partitions and entire individual equipment for each cubicle safeguard infants against contamination.

A third nursery is equipped for premature babies. It contains four incubators and piped-in oxygen. Another smaller nursery, of two-cubicle capacity, is reserved for isolation. It has its own workroom and sterilizing equipment.

INFANTS ARE admitted to the suite through a newly equipped doctor's examining room. A large workroom, formula and sterilizing rooms complete the suite.

Visitors may see infants, through a large window in the workroom. A small placard in a corner of the window says, "Babies are shown at 3:45 and 7:45 p.m."

One of the nurseries is decorated in pale pink and aqua and the other in yellow and pastel blue. The large workroom is done in pale green and gray. In the near future all windows of the nursery will have venetian blinds.

THE NEW labor and delivery room suite consists of two labor rooms and two delivery rooms, one containing all-new equipment; a doctors' lounge, and utility and storage rooms.

Centrally located in the maternity wing is a newly-equipped nurses' station and a "father's room." The "father's" or waiting room, is furnished in large leather chairs and contains reading material and card tables.

Several of the patients' rooms in the maternity wing have now been redecorated. Sister Theresa Mary, obstetrical supervisor, anticipates the redecoration will be completed in the near future.

The enlarging of the maternity wing has required assignment of additional nurses to the department.

Soviet Youth Asked To Fight Religion

London — (RNS) — Soviet young people were called upon "to fight religion" by the Russian youth organ Young Bolshevik.

The article said that "victory for Communism will come only after the struggle against all the religious traditions of the world has been won."

"Under our Communist conditions," the article said, "religion continues to play a reactionary part. It clings to all that is old and false, and being a most viable conservative ideology, it impedes the overcoming of other remnants of the past."

The Communist education of the youth and workers, the article added, "is therefore indissolubly connected with exposing and overcoming religious morality."

3 In Family Baptized On Same Day

Baptisms in St. Ann's Church, Hornell, were a family affair on December 2. Three "newcomers" to the Tobin family were baptized on that day. From left to right are the Rev. Robert MacNamara, assistant pastor, who administered the sacrament; John Tobin, baptism sponsor; and Jerry Tobin with Timothy Shawn. In the background are Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Colgrove, aunt and uncle of the proud father, who were godparents for the infants.

Oxnam, POAU Protest Vatican Envoy Role

Chicago—(RNS)—More than 3,000 persons gathered here to protest President Truman's nomination of an ambassador to the Vatican.

Methodist Bishop C. Brentley Oxnam of New York, speaking on the program sponsored by the newly-formed Chicago chapter of Protestants and Other Americans United for Separation of Church and State, said that "the President has driven a wedge into our American life."

A resolution "condemning the organization's protest was adopted and sent to the President and to Senators Douglas and Dirksen of Ill."

The resolution declared that the organization would oppose confirmation of the appointment in "every legitimate way" because it "would violate the constitutional separation of Church and State."
