Uses Fortune To Aid Poor

Boston — (RNS) — A former count, who renounced his aristocratic title, took the vow of poverty, and since 1904 has used his own personal fortune in the service of the aged poor in his native Paris, is visiting the United States.

He is Almond Marquise, organizer of the Little Brothers of the Poor, which offers young business and professional men an opportunity to lead lives of service to the poor. Thus far eight young men joined M. Marquise in the vow of poverty, and a number of others help as auxiliaries on a part-time basis. They live in Paris' poorest section.

The Brothers bring hot meals three times a week to the aged poor in their homes. When necessary, they make minor repairs, chop firewood, furnish clothes or coal, and perform such errands as cashing government allotment checks.
