

'Our Lady Of Goodbyes'

Mary's Life Comfort To Those Parted By Armed Forces Call

Statenville (NC)—The answer to the pain of your goodbyes is in the saga of Mary's path through life.

HE RECALLED how the little family came back to Nazareth where they had to start all over again.

At a time when so many mothers, wives and sweethearts were taking farewells of their loved ones as they go off to the nation's armed forces, they no doubt wonder "why must love pay this cruel price of separation?"

Bishop Mussio related how Mary became betrothed to Joseph, and how the Angel appeared to her and announced that she was to become the mother of God.

"Now however, there loomed up the pain of a goodbye that would never leave her," the Bishop said. "She must say a last goodbye to Joseph. No words of mine could possibly picture the tenderness of that scene.

"NO THEN TOLD the saga of 'Our Lady of Goodbyes,' recalling the poignancy of her first goodbye to her parents, Anne and Joachim, as a young girl as she entered the service of the temple.

"I WONDER what were Mary's thoughts as she bade goodbye to her little home," Bishop Mussio said. "I wonder how she held back the tears as she bade goodbye to all the good friends who circled lovingly about her.

For "Our Lady of Goodbyes" there still was work to be done. Jesus must be cared for, trained and prepared for the future.

"How joyfully for her passed the days, the beautiful temple services, the companionship of the other girls, good, kind and high in their dedication of life."

"And then came Bethlehem, and the stable and that starry night when the angel cried out to the shepherds: 'There has been born to you today, in the town of David, a Saviour, who is Christ the Lord.'"

"THE NEXT goodbye of Mary was said on Calvary. I shall not linger here long. It is hard to watch a gentle woman in so much sorrow in such pain, transfixed by the sharp sword of her suffering. Here was her whole life, here was the reason for all her goodbyes, here hanging so helplessly on the Cross.

"But then again, when the term of her services had been fulfilled, she must say goodbye. At that time her beloved parents had gone to God and she, most likely, had to seek a place in the home of others."

"THE BISHOP recalled the kindness of the shepherds; the visit of the Magi, who brought gifts that turned the stable into a palace. He also recalled the visit of the angel to Joseph in a dream, directing that Mary and the Child should be taken to Egypt. He added: 'It was to be another goodbye, to that manger that had cradled her Infant Son' as they left for Egypt and made a new home."

"The Bishop recalled that there still was another goodbye, when Mary on her deathbed bade farewell to the companions of her Son, Peter, James and John, Philip and Nathaniel, and all the others who walked with Jesus and were known as His disciples."

"The best way to get the other fellow on your side is to try to prove to him that you're wrong."

Three To Enter Benedictines In Rite On Saturday

At a ceremony to be held on Saturday, January 5, at 4:15 in the afternoon, three Postulants at Mount Saviour Monastery, Elmira, will become Novices of the Benedictine Community.

POSTULANTS WILL be shown a copy of the rule of St. Benedict and inquiry will be made as to their willingness to observe these rules. Upon their assent to do so with the help of God, the impressive ritual continues with the "Mandatum," or washing of the feet as was done at the Last Supper.

At the time of St. Benedict, this ritual was observed for the reception of guests to the Community but is now reserved for those entering as members of the Community.

AFTER THE WASHING of the feet of each Postulant by the Superior, the other Monks then knelt in turn before the new Novices and laid their feet symbolically of the reverence for Christ Who is received in them and of the fulfillment of His laws of Fraternal Charity and Humility. The ceremony will conclude with the investiture of the Postulants in the Novice's Cowl, distinguishing them from Postulants and Professing Monks.

Those to become Novices are: Rev. Joseph Brudran, Lehighton, Pa., Brother Benedict Tighe, Somerville, Mass., and Brother Joseph Br-w-n, Woodmere, Long Island, N. Y.
