A Good Film Spoiled: Wedding Without Headlines

Several non-Catholic friends recently commented why I fail to mention "People Will Talk."

It was an unusual wedding. The bride and groom were not only Catholics but also members of the same church.

Now alone come writers with "Room for One More," a story about an ordinary middle-class couple who, with three children of their own, still have the goodness of heart to take care of two growing problem children who are orphaned.

RESPONSES of children who watch these programs, Dr. McCoy said, disclose that the lower the child's IQ, the more likely he is to watch many mystery-crime programs.

Dr. McCoy said a "surprising" number of youngsters reported that they watched hour-long dramatic productions which are intended for mature persons.
