

Catholic Church Divinely Founded By Christ, Father Keller Tells City Club

By ARTHUR P. FARREN

The divinity of Christ and His divine establishment of the Catholic Church were defended before 500 persons of all faiths at a City Club of Rochester dinner last Saturday noon in the Chamber of Commerce building. Speaker was the Rev. James Keller, M.M., founder of the Christophers and one of the nation's best-selling authors, who forthrightly told his audience:

"If Christ isn't what He said, He was the greatest faker who ever lived. He is either true God, or a liar!"

Holding that Christ is truly God, the Maryknoll missionary summarized his belief by stating that Christ established the Catholic Church through His Apostles ("Thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build My church"), gave a "program" to that Church—His grace through the Sacraments ("whatsoever you bind on earth shall be bound in heaven")—and promised to be with His Church "until the consummation of the world."

SPeAKING ON "What Catholics Believe," Father Keller said "God made me to know Him, to love Him and to serve Him in this world, that I might be happy with Him in eternity." and added, "I believe this so much that I am ready to die for my belief." He then referred his listeners to the simple little catechism for "what Catholics believe."

Responsibility of the individual who knows and loves God to bring others to that knowledge and love was stressed by the priest.

Emphasizing that everyone "even the worst of men, is created in the image of God," Father Keller said it is the "obligation" of the believer "to do something, even though it be just one little thing, to bring out God's image in others."

"Joe Stalin—I pray for him," the New York priest declared to illustrate his point.

Christ came to redeem all men, Father Keller noted, adding that "that is the purpose of the Church—to reach all men."

"EACH ONE OF us," the Maryknoll maintained, "can do something big or little to help rectify the world situation. We must reach our love out as far as we can, to counteract the doctrine of hate that is threatening to engulf us."

That is one of the basic aims of the Christopher Movement, Father Keller said "the individual's responsibility for the good of all." Christopher literature, he commented, now is being sent to a mailing list of more than a half million persons.

"People can change," declared the priest-author of "You Can Change the World," "just as St. Paul changed." Many of those who hate, he contended, can be brought to love through one little prayer or act.

Deploring the fact that "there are 800 million persons in the world who never heard of Christ, and 75 million persons in our nation who admit no church affiliation," Father Keller appealed particularly to Americans—"as America goes in the next three or four years, so may go the world"—to recall Christ's command to go teach all nations all things.

Father Keller said Catholics "are not really living our faith until we suffer for it," and referred to Christ's counsel, "Take up thy cross and follow Me" in the first three centuries of Christianity, the speaker reminded his listeners, 11 million persons died for their belief.

Everyone, the missionary asserted, "despite his denials believes in death, Judgment Heaven and Hell!"

QUESTIONED by a person in the audience as to "why, if Christ really brings light into darkness, conditions are not better in Catholic Spain?" Father Keller first expressed the hope that his questioner would "read more than one version" of the Spanish situation.

The priest then stated that, nothing governed by the hand of men is perfect, and that the history of the Church shows it to have been "in poor condition" several times through the ages "due to human frailty." He then drew a parallel by indicating that the worth of the United States Constitution cannot be judged solely by the fact that last year 48,000,000 American citizens failed to vote.

The Church has weathered centuries of criticism, heresy, scandals, abuses and persecution, Father Keller added significantly.

REPLYING to other questions from listeners, the priest said that (1) Hell might be described in one sense as "separation from a lover," and that because of free will "nobody goes to Hell unless he himself chooses"; (2) that evil and suffering on earth "are mysteries we do not fully understand," and (3) that there are moral principles justifying war under certain conditions, there is a "moral right of defense" and that "thank God America never has been guilty of an aggressive war."

Queried about the Christopher movement, the founder said there are "no members, meetings or dues." It seeks to reach average people, he continued, "urging personal responsibility and appealing to the best in every person," and encourages them to "help change the world back to love of God and neighbor" by exerting their influence especially in the fields of education, government, communications and labor relations.

Financed by donations "from big and little people of all faiths," Father Keller said, the movement has a million and a half books in circulation, and distributes its literature free to any persons requesting it. Currently there are 30 movies and three television shows based on the Christopher idea, he said.

FATHER KELLER was introduced by Sol Linowitz, president of the City Club. Lay representatives of several Catholic organizations were among persons at the speakers table.

The priest made liberal use of specific incidents to amplify various points in his talk, especially the theme of "spreading love." He was roundly applauded following the address.

Probe Of 'Anti-Religious' Canadian Broadcasts Set

Ottawa, Ont.—(RNS)—The Canadian Parliament has appointed a committee to investigate charges that the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation indulged in "blasphemy and indecency" in a series of allegedly anti-religious programs.

Roman Catholics have taken the lead in protesting the broadcasts. They have been supported by other religious groups, some of which denounced the programs as "blatantly anti-Christian and anti-moral."

THE PROGRAMS in question were a series of lectures by Fred Hoyle, a Cambridge University (Eng.) don, Dr. Brock Chisholm, Dr. Evelyn Cameron, Dr. Anna Freud, Dr. Carl Binger and Bertrand Russell.

George Drew, leader of the Progressive Conservative party in the House of Commons, said the broadcasts were a "subtle, dangerous type of blasphemy."

"The Catholic Church, the Anglican Church, the United Church of Christ, the Presbyterian Church and, I think, most of the other denominations have severely criticized the action of the C.B.C. in this matter," he said.

THE UNDERLYING distinction between our democracy and the Communist system is based upon religion and upon the belief in the equality of each human being before God," Mr. Drew continued. "The most powerful influence opposed to the spread of Communism is religion itself."

He added that "we do not permit indecent broadcasts when we use the word 'indecent' in another connotation and we should not permit indecent broadcasts when that indecency relates to religious beliefs."

A Davidson Low, chairman of the C.B.C., issued a statement saying that he did not know just what passages in the broadcasts were alleged to be anti-religious or "blasphemous" and that he would appear before the investigating committee to deal with the matter.

THE CHAPEL was filled to overflowing with relatives and friends of Father Howard, including more than 80 priests and a large number of nuns, from Mississippi and Louisiana. Among the priests was the Rev.
