Vatican Radio Corrects Refugee Journalist Reports

London—(NC)—Vatican Radio has sharply rebuked "overzealous" refugee journalists who spread exaggerations or falsehoods about Church conditions in Hungary.

Vatican Radio administered its rebuke by quoting from an article in Az Flet, an organ of refugee Hungarian Catholics. The broadcast went particularly into the cases of the Rev. Richard Horvath, secretary general of the government-sponsored "peace committee for priests," and the Rev. Istvan Balogh, who once served as chairman of the committee.

"THE REFUGEE press," Vatican Radio stated, quoting Az Flet, "in its overzealousness or for lack of suitable material has often overshoot its target of late. Lies cannot be combated by lies."

The broadcast cited one refugee journal as stating that Father Horvath was compelled to ask for another assignment because he was boycotted by his flock. "The truth is that he did not ask for a different assignment and continues to remain pastor of Saint Imre Church," the broadcast said.

Father Balogh was described by one refugee journal as dis regarding an excommunication imposed on him and returning to his priestly functions.

"THE FACES are as follows," the broadcast said. "On account of disobedience, Istvan Balogh was suspended some years ago
