FATHER GABDINER spoke o the graduates of the "absolute necessity of a continued growth a the spiritual life."

"Our great and fundamental vocation in life, a vocation that omes before our vocations as priest or nun or business man or mother, is the same two-fold vocation that Christ had. a vocation of suffering and a vocation of teaching." the Jesuit said.

He outlined the manner in which each can offer suffering, even the least experienced, if looked upon "as chances to imitate Our Lord in His apostolate of suffering."

On the matter of teaching, the speaker said "It is psychologically impossible for anyone of you to live for yourselves alone. If
