College Degree Begins Life At 41 For Ovid Man

The old adage that life begins at 40 is one in which George L. Govern of Ovid is a firm believer. And it's no wonder for George on Tuesday, June 10, received his Bachelor of Civil Engineering degree from Manhattan College in New York City at the tender age of 41.

It takes a great deal of determination to begin a college career at the age of 37. But determination, along with ambition, is one thing that Govern has plenty of and it was this particular trait in his character that kept him going through four years of a tough course in a college recognized as a national leader in the field of engineering education.

WHAT MAKES Govern's story all the more interesting is the fact that he is married and is the father of two sons. His family live on their 240-acre farm in Ovid. It is because of the farm and the fact that he wants to continue to operate it that George has accepted the position of Civil Engineer at the Sampson Air Force Base. He expects to work the farm on his off hours.

Govern was born and raised in Rochester. His father, the late Edward J., was likewise a Manhattan College graduate and was one of the first to receive a Bachelor of Civil Engineering degree from that College back in 1893.

Following his graduation from Aquinas Institute here, Govern began his 20-year career as a working civil engineer. This career was interrupted for four years during World War II while the Ovid resident was seeing service with famed construction group, the Navy Seabees, as a Chief Petty Officer.

GEORGE RESUMED his work following his discharge but the burning desire to get a degree in Civil Engineering was almost overpowering. Finally in 1948 while holding the position of Engineer-in-Charge of Construction for the U. S. Corps of Engineers in upstate New York, Govern made his decision to go to college. That fall, he enrolled at Manhattan. His popularity with the younger students at the College is attested to by the fact that he has been elected president of Chi Epsilon, Civil Engineering Honor Society.
